Purpose

The College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences is committed to providing all of its students with an education that balances in-depth study in certain areas with a breadth of experience in the various disciplines that form the core of human knowledge. Its 28 degree-granting programs and disciplines share a commitment to the highest standards of academic quality, to a mode of study that nurtures critical thinking skills, to a self-conscious examination of questions of value and meaning, and to the development of those habits of the heart and mind intrinsic to a life-long and independent learner.

Our commitment is reflected in a faculty that is as strongly committed to teaching as it is to research. It is reflected in curricular practices that discourage students from concentrating in one subject area to the exclusion of all others. And it is reflected in the College's encouragement of interdisciplinary areas of study that underline the connections and unities among the various areas of knowledge.

The College values and nurtures the Catholic, urban, and Vincentian mission of the University. The interactions among its faculty and between its faculty and its students are characterized by personalism. Significant portions of the curriculum speak to questions of social responsibility, ethical standards for behavior, and an active engagement with the people and the challenges of the Chicago community.

College Requirements

STUDY IN THE MAJOR FIELD

The students course of study in the College consists of three parts: Liberal Studies, the major field, and electives. Together these three parts contribute to the liberal education of the student which is the common purpose of all study in the College. By liberal education the College understands not only a deep and through knowledge of a particular area of study but a knowledge of the diverse areas of study represented by criticism, history, the arts, the behavioral and social sciences, philosophy, religious studies, the natural science, and mathematics.

Most major fields consist of two parts: a program of major field courses and a number of supporting or allied field requirements. The major field program generally is built upon a set of core courses and a specialized concentration designed for career preparation. The number of courses required for a major varies by department. Most students go beyond the minimum requirements, electing additional courses which both broaden and deepen their understanding of their chosen discipline.

Because no academic major program is built in isolation, students are required to pursue a number of electives of the students choice. The inherent flexibility of this curriculum demands that the student consult an academic advisor at each stage in the total program and at least once prior to each registration. Students should also go to the Liberal Arts and Social Sciences office for their official graduation check early in their senior year.

DECLARATION OF MAJOR, MINOR AND CONCENTRATION

All students in the College are required to declare a major field prior to beginning their junior year. To declare a major field, the student should fill out the online Declaration of Program
The student should fill out the online Declaration of Program Plan form. The student will then be assigned a faculty advisor in the department or program and should make an appointment to see that advisor at his or her earliest convenience.

To change major fields, or to declare a minor or concentration, the student must repeat the procedure described above. However, for the purpose of exploring the possibility of changing a major field, the student should consult an academic advisor in the College.

COMPETENCE IN MODERN LANGUAGE

Students who intend to graduate with the Bachelor of Arts Degree will be required to demonstrate competence in a modern language equivalent to the proficiency attained from one year of college-level language study. Such competence may be demonstrated in one of several ways:

- completing the last course in the fourth-year high school sequence of any language
- completing the last course in the first-year college sequence of any language
- completing a college course beyond the first-year level in any language
- achieving a satisfactory score on any of the Modern Language placement examinations administered at DePaul
- achieving a satisfactory rating in a proficiency examination accepted by DePaul
- achieving a score of 3 or higher on the Advance Placement (AP) test for any language
- achieving a score of 5 or higher in the Language B assessment from a Standard or Higher Level International Baccalaureate (IB) program
- achieving a satisfactory score on the CLEP examination

For further information regarding satisfactory scores and possible credit from the DePaul placement, AP, CLEP, or IB examinations, please contact Student Records.

Students who complete an Inter-College Transfer (ICT) to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences will abide by the LA&S Modern Language Requirement in place on the effective date of the ICT.

B.A. students who meet College requirements and wish to pursue further work in the language may elect the Modern Language Option of the Liberal Studies Program. While B.S. students are not required to demonstrate competency in a modern language, the Modern Language Option is available to them for language study at any level.

EXTERNAL CREDIT AND RESIDENCY

A student who has been admitted to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences begins residency within the college as of the first day of classes of the term in which the student is registered. Students in residence, whether attending on a full-time or part-time basis, may not take courses away from DePaul University without the written permission of the college. Permission should be obtained in advance of registration to avoid loss of credit or residency in the college.

Admission

Candidates interested in admission to the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences should direct all inquiries to the Office of Admission, DePaul University, 1 E. Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Illinois, 60604, admission@depaul.edu, or (312) 362-8300.

For general information on the types of admission, see University Information, Admission.

Academic Advising

The College believes that academic advisement is necessary for the vitality and success of the students' undergraduate education. The purposes of Liberal education require that the education of the student forms a coherent whole. Therefore, the requirements of the Liberal Studies Program and to a degree the major field are determined by the individual students' intellectual interests, needs, and abilities.

Academic approval of a course of study is required of all students in the College. Students who have not declared a major field must consult their academic advisor in the College before registering for courses. Students who have declared their major field must consult the faculty advisor assigned by their department.

Once a student has declared a major field, the faculty advisor in the department has principal responsibility for the academic program of the student. The student should not expect that courses selected without the advice and consent of an advisor will satisfy the requirements of the College.

College of Liberal Arts & Social Sciences - Undergraduate Studies ▶ General Information ▶ Special Programs

TEACH Program

This program provides students the opportunity to complete in five years an undergraduate degree in a core arts and sciences major and a Master's of Education degree with State of Illinois secondary education teaching certification in a content area related to their major. As a combined degree program of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education, the program is collaboratively developed, governed, and taught by faculty from both units.

Students may apply to the Program during the spring of their junior year. They must complete the Junior Year Experiential Learning course TCH 320, Exploring Teaching in an Urban High School, and meet other application criteria prior to applying; these include completion of at least 16 hours at DePaul and a 3.0 GPA. During their Senior Year, students are required to complete a program capstone course and three 400-level courses that count toward both their undergraduate and graduate degrees. The Masters year comprises teacher-preparation coursework that culminates with student teaching during Spring quarter. Upon graduation and the fulfilling of State of Illinois Certification requirements (which may require some additional course work in the students major and related fields), students are eligible to be certified to teach English, History, Social Science, Math, Biology, Chemistry, Environmental Science, or Physics at the 6th-12th grade levels.

A full description of the Program can be found on the College of Education website in the graduate course catalog. Students interested in the TEACH Program may consult with Dr. Lucy Rinehart in the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences or Dr. Christopher Worthman in the College of Education.

Honors Program Option

Students seeking a more challenging Liberal Studies experience should consider applying for the University Honors Program. This program, designed for the well prepared student, incorporates a structured series of specifically designed courses taken in sequence throughout the students four years at DePaul. Students who complete the University Honors Program will be exceptionally well prepared for graduate and professional study.

Modern Language Option

The Modern Language Option is available to all B.A. students who wish to study a modern language beyond the level necessary to meet the Colleges language requirement and to B.S. students who wish to study a Modern Language at any level. Students selecting the option may substitute a three-course language sequence for two domain courses and one open elective. Students may use the Modern Language option to reduce their requirements by one course among two of the following combinations of learning domains. Philosophical Inquiry or Religious Dimensions; Understanding the Past or Self, Society, and the Modern World; Arts and Literature or Scientific Inquiry (cannot substitute for the lab science requirement.) Students majoring in one modern language may use the Modern Language Option for study of a second language at the intermediate level or above. Please see your advisor for additional information about modern language course placement.

Prelaw Study

The Association of American Law Schools does not consider it appropriate to prescribe certain undergraduate degree programs for students who are planning to study Law at the professional level. The Association does, however, consider certain skills and knowledge essential for later success in Law and appropriate for study on the undergraduate level.

Prelaw study in the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences is intended for those students who, in addition to satisfying the requirements of an academic field of specialization, also want to develop those capacities and skills essential for satisfactory performance in law school. Specifically, Prelaw Study is intended to develop the following skills: (1) the ability to use the English language skillfully and effectively in oral and written advocacy situations, (2) the power to think clearly, critically, and independently in situations requiring problem-solving ability and sound judgment, and (3) the ability to use and understand statistical calculations. Moreover, Pre-Law Study is intended to promote an understanding of the psychological processes, economic systems, political organizations, and social structures essential to the study and practice of law.

Admission to the College of Law, DePaul University is based on collegiate performance, scores achieved on the Law School Admissions Test (LSAT), extracurricular activities, work experience and letters of recommendation. The legal program offered through the College of Law leads to the degree of Juris Doctor (J.D.).

Students who want to prepare for Law School should, whatever their academic major, consult with Dr. David Barnum in the Department of Political Science.

Study Abroad Program

A study abroad experience is an important part of a liberal education. The opportunity to live, study, and work with people from around the world provides students with a way to not only gain international competence and skills, but also helps them to more clearly understand their own identities and agency within a global context. Study Abroad programs are designed to emphasize social, political, historical, and cultural understanding through immersion in other cultures and societies. Short-term programs are topic-focused tours led by DePaul faculty exploring specific aspects and issues of a country or society. These programs typically last 2-3 weeks and are offered during breaks between terms. Students are encouraged to participate in the Study Abroad Program during their academic career. Study Abroad programs offered during most years include:

African and Black Diaspora Studies

The purpose of the African & Black Diaspora Studies Program is to provide DePaul students with a systematic, interdisciplinary, and integrated course of study of Africa & the Black Diaspora. The Program provides students with an opportunity to earn a Bachelor of Arts degree in African & Black Diaspora Studies with a concentration in Africa, Black America, and/or Afro-Caribbean and Latin America. African & Black Diaspora Studies will also train students in comparative analysis of regions (e.g., peoples, religions, philosophies) through an incorporation of the study of history, power, identity, gender, and race. The Programs offerings provide students with opportunities to learn about and develop expertise in the cultures, epistemologies, histories, sciences, and societies of Africans and peoples of African descent. The Program prepares students to pursue professions and careers that require a systematic knowledge of Africa and its Diaspora.

Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:

Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student’s primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

Program Requirements

Core Courses

Students are required to complete four core courses (16-quarter hours). The core courses are designed to accomplish three goals: to introduce students to the goals of the Program; to emphasize the Vincentian tenet that questions of human value undergird scholarly inquiry; and to strengthen an understanding of the interrelationships and dynamics among and between Africa, the Caribbean and Latin America, and the United States.

The four courses that all students must take regardless of field of concentration are as follows:
Courses in an Area of Concentration

For this requirement, students must take six courses (24-quarter hours) at the 300 level which should focus on one region of the Black World: Africa, the Caribbean and Latin America, or the United States and its respective relation to other regions of the world. These six concentration courses are designed to provide students with a body of knowledge about a particular region of study. Students who wish to take a 200 level course in partial fulfillment of this requirement must petition the African and Black Diaspora Studies Program Steering Committee for approval. These courses build upon the general foundation of knowledge provided by the core courses and serve to augment and extend student knowledge about a particular region of Africa or the Black Diaspora and its relationship to other areas of the Program, and inquiry (culture, gender, history, power, and race) impact a specific region. These courses incorporate an explicit discussion of at least two of the five sites of inquiry into the syllabus.

The framework below outlines the kinds of courses that students will be required to take. To ensure that students are exposed to a variety of methodological approaches and knowledges, students will be required to take three courses in the social and behavioral sciences (anthropology, geography, history, international studies, psychology, political science, and sociology) and humanities (e.g., American studies, history of art and architecture, literature, Latin American & Latino studies, modern languages, music, philosophy, religious studies, and theatre). Each student, in consultation with his or her advisor, which is mandatory, will design a concentration that is attentive to comparative analysis.

Electives

Students in the Program will be able to take two courses as major field electives (eight-quarter hours). Such courses are designed to provide students with an opportunity to take courses related to their field of concentration in African and Black Diaspora Studies and at the same time extend their academic preparation through coursework in allied fields. The selection of electives will be done in consultation with the students academic advisor.

Capstone - ABD 391

This senior seminar (four quarter hours) engages students in a synthesis of what they have learned through coursework. The capstone course will involve reading, writing, discussion, as well as the preparation by students a substantive piece of work (e.g., a senior thesis, a research paper, or a creative work).
American Studies

American Studies examines the breadth and diversity of the American experience. It is an interdisciplinary field that integrates the study of history, literature, popular culture, media, geography, politics, art, and religion in order to critically analyze American society, culture, institutions, and intellectual traditions. Students and faculty in American Studies question what constitutes American culture, and how cultural expressions reflect and reveal American values, beliefs, prejudices, pleasures, and perceptions.

American Studies courses are methodologically grounded in many different areas of cultural studies including media studies, material culture, visual literacy, critical race theory, and gender/sexuality studies. Students are expected to gain competency in American cultural studies by mastering the theoretical and intellectual frameworks of their concentrations and by learning to interpret and analyze primary documents.

Students in history, communication, anthropology, political science, sociology, English and other interdisciplinary programs find it beneficial to double major or minor in American studies. Students who pursue American Studies are well prepared for graduate work in the humanities as well as professional training in law or business, and most of our graduates go on to pursue post-graduate degrees.

Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student's primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.
In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

Senior Seminar

College of Liberal Arts & Social Sciences - Undergraduate Studies > Academic Departments and Programs of Study > American Studies > Departmental Program Requirements

Foundation Requirements

Prerequisites: At least one course in U.S. History (AMS 200 or one course from the HST 181/182/183 sequence) is a prerequisite to the core courses in the American Studies Program. Submission of AP U.S. History credit or SAT II U.S. History scores of 650 or higher will satisfy this requirement. In some cases, students will be allowed to enroll in U.S. History and AMS 211, 213 or 215 concurrently. Students are encouraged to take more than one course in U.S. History and to take U.S. History in the fall quarter as soon as they decide on an American Studies major.

Core Courses: The three-course sequence AMS 211, 213, and 215 forms the foundation of the program and should be completed in the sophomore or junior year, ideally in order. Seniors should plan to take the capstone seminar course, AMS 301, in the fall of their senior year. If necessary, AMS 215 may be taken at the same time as AMS 301.

College of Liberal Arts & Social Sciences - Undergraduate Studies > Academic Departments and Programs of Study > American Studies > Concentrations

Concentrations

Students choose from among the following five concentrations: Popular Culture and Media Studies; Social and Literary Movements; Politics, Institutions and Values; Comparative Race and Ethnic Studies; and Material Culture and the Built Environment. Students are required to take six courses within the concentration. Throughout the concentration courses, students are required to maintain a portfolio which combines reflections on the courses with collections of course materials (syllabi, completed written course work, collections of visuals, e.g., photo essays whatever is appropriate to the six courses chosen for the concentration). The reflections on each course and then on the concentration overall should include responses to questions such as What were the courses most valuable lessons in research, analysis, writing and communication? How did this course, taken together with the other courses you have chosen for your concentration, influence/develop your understanding of the area of American culture on which you are focusing? Students turn in their portfolio on the concentration, along with a proposal for the senior seminar project, in the first weeks of the senior seminar. Specific directions for the portfolio can be obtained from your American Studies advisor, from the American Studies Program office, or from the American Studies Program Directors.

College of Liberal Arts & Social Sciences - Undergraduate Studies > Academic Departments and Programs of Study > American Studies > Electives and Distribution Requirements

Electives and Distribution Requirements

In consultation with an advisor, students will select three additional courses from outside of the concentration. For the concentration and the electives, no more than three courses for the major should be from any one department outside of AMS.

College of Liberal Arts & Social Sciences - Undergraduate Studies > Academic Departments and Programs of Study > American Studies > Senior Seminar

Senior Seminar

During the fall quarter of their senior year, students should take AMS 301 capstone, the Senior Seminar. In the beginning weeks of the senior seminar, majors must submit their portfolio with collected course materials and reflections on the concentration courses and a proposal for a senior seminar project. Each major will be assigned to an American Studies Program Committee faculty member who will be responsible for reviewing the portfolio.

Special Programs

MINOR
For the American Studies minor, students must complete two of the three core courses (AMS 211, 213 & 215), plus four US topic courses (American Studies electives) which must include AMS 200 or one US History course and may include AMS 301 (Senior Seminar). Ideally, AMS 200 or the US History course should be taken before enrolling in AMS 211. The American Studies minor is an especially viable option when combined with a major in the humanities, social sciences, fine arts, natural sciences, business, or secondary education.

DOUBLE MAJOR
For the American Studies double major, students must complete the major requirements. Double majors may often double count courses for both majors. Double majors with History, Political Science, Communication, English, Psychology, and Sociology are the most common; the American Studies double major is valuable experience and excellent preparation for graduate or professional school or for immediate employment.

INTERNSHIPS
Internships (for variable credit) in local agencies will be available for interested students. Such agencies might include the Newberry Library, the Chicago Historical Society, the NAACP, art galleries, museums, civic organizations, government agencies, archives, ethnic and religious organizations, law firms and corporate employers as well as internships at DePaul.

Anthropology

Anthropology is the comparative study of humanity, focusing on people in all places and throughout history and prehistory. Courses engage students in the analysis of beliefs, values, and practices from a perspective that understands societies on their own terms. This perspective includes comparing the similarities and differences among different groups and appreciating and valuing different ways of living. Students study other cultures in order to learn more about their own. This curriculum affords students the opportunity to see the interaction between what we know and what we do that lies at the heart of the study of humanity.

Our curriculum combines the best parts of a critical, creative, liberal arts education with practical, professional preparation. The major courses direct the student toward the subfields of cultural anthropology and archaeology, with a focus on applied research in these sub-fields. As part of the major, students engage in several research projects, including those that expose them to the application of anthropological knowledge for non-academic audiences, and to our archaeological field school. Out-of-class research projects in the City of Chicago are integral components of several courses. They graduate with an extensive knowledge of how anthropology is actually done. We bring students farther into this practical side of the discipline than any other B.A. program in the country.

Academic careers are attractive to some graduates, but more than half of all professional anthropologists work outside of academic institutions. Some of these careers include research for public and private organizations, administration and/or public policy on the local, regional, federal, or international level; research and work in museums; intercultural communication; advertising, marketing, and public relations; human resources, public health, health care, and law. They also contribute to non-governmental and international organizations. Within the context of administration or public policy, anthropologists are engaged in cultural resource management (CRM), monitoring the preservation of cultural resources for national parks, museums, and state or municipal cultural institutions (i.e., parks and historical societies). Anthropology enhances other career paths, such as modern languages, international studies, international relations, cultural studies, and international business. Students will have completed at least four ethnographic research projects and be certified in archaeological research skills by the time they graduate.

The extensive ethnographic research experience qualifies students with B.A. degrees to work in both non-profit (social service agencies) and for-profit (marketing, design, user-based) research settings. The archaeological certification opens avenues for careers in cultural resource management (CRM), and monitoring the preservation of cultural resources for national parks, museums, and state or municipal cultural institutions.

B.A. IN ANTHROPOLOGY

Introductory Course: One of the following courses: (4 quarter hours) ANT 102, 103, 104, 105, 107, 109 or 120

Core Sequence: All of the following courses: (26 quarter hours) ANT 201 Ethnographic Research Methods, ANT 202 Archaeological Methods, ANT 203 Professionalism and Ethics in Anthropology, ANT 204 Lineages of Culture Theory, ANT 386 Cultural Analysis, ANT 396 Senior Capstone in Anthropology

Applied Practice: One of the following courses: (4 quarter hours) ANT 322, ANT 328, ANT 330

Electives: Five upper-division courses in Anthropology: (20 quarter hours) Students may select from 200 and 300 level ANT courses. 100 level courses do not count as electives unless approved by the chair.

Allied Field Requirement: Anthropological research makes extensive use of language skills because of the opportunity it presents for cultural learning. Students are encouraged to study at least one language to the point of functional fluency, if they wish to become professional anthropologists. The minimum requirement for the major is completion of a language-based study abroad program of ten or more weeks duration. If the student is unable to participate in such a program, they can complete the requirement by studying the language with coursework through the end of the second year (Courses numbered 106). Study languages based courses. Depending on previous course work, students may place out of the requirement entirely by scoring high on the university’s placement exam. Heritage speakers of a language other than English must also take the university’s test. For languages for which no test is available, consult the chair of the Modern Languages department. Even when the minimum of the language requirement is met, all majors are strongly encouraged to participate in a study abroad program that allows them to live in a community where English is not spoken and to seeks instruction in a third or fourth language.

Special Programs

ANTHROPOLOGY MINOR
The Anthropology minor provides the student with an overview of the discipline. Students are required to complete six courses (24 credit hours). Students are required to take the introductory courses in cultural anthropology (ANT 102) and archaeology (ANT 103); Anthropology of Race and Gender (ANT 320); Language, Identity, and Power (ANT 317); and any two additional courses in anthropology. These can be drawn from any anthropology course for which the student has taken the prerequisites.

ARCHAEOLOGY MINOR
The Archaeology Minor provides students with an intensive grounding in both the methods and narratives of prehistoric and historic archaeology. Students are required to complete six courses (24 credit hours). Required courses are: ANT 103 Introduction to Archaeology, ANT 202 Archaeological Methods, and either ANT 252 Material Culture and Domestic Life or ANT 254 Material Culture of Chicago. ANT 202 and ANT 252/254 are only taught as part of the Summer Archaeological Field School (see below). To complete the minor, students may choose 3 electives from this list: any ANT 390 Special Topics course focusing primarily on archaeology, AMS370/ANT250, ANT 252, ANT 358, HST 290, HST 291, HST 294, HST 296 and/or REL 360.

URBAN ARCHAEOLOGICAL FIELD SCHOOL
The department offers program in urban community archaeology every year. Students may take Archaeological Field Methods (ANT 202) for 6 credit hours by completing a three week field school program, which fulfills the core sequence requirement for the major. Students wishing to gain additional archaeological field skills and experience may also enroll in Historical Archaeology of Chicago (ANT 254) for an additional two credit hours. ANT 254 involves two additional weeks of field and laboratory work and is recommended for students with career interests in archaeology. All majors and archaeology minors are strongly encouraged to fulfill these requirements in the field school. For those who are not able to attend the field school, the archaeological methods must be made up independently or through an approved program at another institution.

ANTHROPOLOGY INTERNSHIPS AND STUDY ABROAD
Internships may be arranged to work with scholars at the Field Museum of Natural History, the Chicago Historical Society and other cultural institutions in the area. Students will enroll for Anthropology Internship (ANT 280) with an individual faculty member. Participation in study abroad programs, especially term-long programs in Athens and Merida and short-term programs in the Bahamas and Morocco, is strongly encouraged. From time to time, students work with individual faculty members on summer research grants funded by the college.

TEACH PROGRAM
This program provides students the opportunity to complete in five years an undergraduate Anthropology major and a Masters of Education degree with State of Illinois secondary teaching certification in Social Science. As a combined degree program of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education, the program is collaboratively developed, governed, and taught by faculty from both units.

Students may apply to the Program during the spring of their junior year. They must complete the Junior Year Experiential Course TCH 320, Exploring Teaching in an Urban High School, and meet other application criteria prior to applying; these include completion of at least 16 quarter credit hours at DePaul and a 3.0 GPA. During their senior year, students are required to complete a Program capstone course and three 400-level courses that count toward both their undergraduate and graduate degrees. The Masters year comprises teacher-preparation coursework that culminates with student teaching during Spring quarter. Upon graduation and the fulfilling of State of Illinois Certification requirements (which may require some additional course work in the students major and related fields), students are eligible to be certified to teach Social Studies at the 6th-12th grade levels.

A full description of the Program can be found on the College of Education website in the graduate course catalog. Students interested in the Program should consult with the designated TEACH Program advisor in their home department early in their undergraduate career.

Art, Media, and Design

The Department of Art, Media, and Design offers a general curriculum which identifies and promotes continuing contact with the enduring values of our artistic heritage and the application of these values to the future. The educational aim of the department is to provide, through individualized instruction, a broad foundation in studio art practice. The curriculum emphasizes fundamental artistic concepts through problem solving and experimentation in studio courses.

Two areas of concentration are offered: 1) A Studio Arts concentration designed to develop artistic skills and abilities in painting, drawing, sculpture, printmaking, digital images, and mixed media, and 2) A Media Arts concentration designed to develop artistic skills in photography, video and digital media and web art.

In addition, the department offers a minor in studio arts and photography for students majoring in other fields (not available to department majors). Through individualized advising and a choice of electives, students are aided in preparing to live a creative life as an artist and in planning for graduate school and/or a diverse group of art-related careers.

Catholic Studies

Catholic Studies
The Department of Catholic Studies is intellectual in focus and interdisciplinary in nature. Rigorous intellectual study, a deepened critical understanding and an appreciation of the Catholic contribution to human civilization are its main goals. The program explores Roman Catholicism as a religious and cultural reality that expresses and motivates multiple forms of human expression. All members of the university are invited to participate in the scholarly examination of Catholicism and the development of Catholic thought. True to DePaul tradition, no religious test is applied to either students or faculty participating in the department. In addition to the offerings of DePaul University, upper-level students in the program in Catholic Studies are able to take selected courses at the Catholic Theological Union at Chicago. The cooperative relationship between DePaul and CTU opens to students in the program the resources of the largest Catholic school of theology and ministry in North America. The Catholic Studies major is designed to give students with differing learning objectives and career goals maximum flexibility in the design of their Bachelor of Arts degree. In order to ensure intellectual coherence in their program, all students are expected to meet quarterly with their academic advisor to design a course of study, refine their learning goals, and select classes that meet their educational and professional objectives.

Notes: See Program Director for one additional course reduction.
Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the Si Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the Si Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student's primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

Departmental Program Requirements

52 hours (13 courses) from the program in Catholic Studies distributed as follows:

Core: 16 hours (4 courses) including 180 (formerly 200) or 201, 205, 206 and 209.

Areas: 16 hours (4 courses) over four of the areas. One of the areas must be Scriptures, Councils and Creeds.

Electives: 16 hours (4 courses) in the program in Catholic Studies. Three of these must be at the 300 level.

Senior Capstone: 4 hours (1 course).

CATHOLIC STUDIES ELECTIVES

56 hours (14 courses) of electives, chosen with the approval of one's academic advisor and appropriate to one's educational and/or professional goals.

Minor in Catholic Studies

The minor in Catholic Studies consists of six courses: the four course core, one course from Scriptures, Councils and Creeds, and one elective.

Community Service Studies
Community Service Studies

Community service is an integral part of American life. It is often equated with volunteerism of all sorts. However, engaging in service to communities raises complex issues that go beyond teaching a child to read, feeding the homeless, or tutoring English to a newly arrived immigrant. Issues of social justice, including race, class, language, socioeconomic standing, cultural sensitivity and privilege, pervade most activities we associate with community service. Community Service Studies is an interdisciplinary experiential learning program that offers students a context for critically reflecting upon and engaging in service and volunteerism.

The Community Service Studies Minor combines courses from several disciplines that provide a framework for viewing community service from the perspectives of theory, ethics and group dynamics. The curriculum relies heavily upon community-based service learning courses. This form of experiential learning is designed for students interested in developing a deeper understanding and practice of community service either as a prelude to a career after graduation or to enhance their personal sense of social justice as they enter the world of work. In this way, students are provided with the opportunity to integrate progressively deeper and more challenging forms of service and social engagement with more challenging intellectual reflection.

Community Service Studies Minors

Electives

Courses

Foundation Community Service Studies

All undergraduate students are eligible to complete a Minor in Community Service Studies.

Minor requirements: The minor requires the completion of six courses (24 credit hours). All students must complete the three Foundations courses. Students must choose an additional three courses from the approved Electives or in consultation with the Director of the Community Service Studies Program.

Students with a community service studies minor will complete a minimum of four community-based service learning (EL-CbSL) courses (note: EL-CbSL courses are those which incorporate a minimum of 25 hours of community service into the course requirements). All three of the foundation courses are EL-CbSL courses. Therefore, at least one of the elective courses must also be an EL-CbSL course. Course numbers and titles in italics below are community-based service learning courses.

Comparative Literature

The Comparative Literature minor enables students to study the history, theory, and criticism of literature across national, linguistic, and disciplinary boundaries. It is designed for students who combine the drive and the ability to master foreign languages with a strong commitment to theoretical and interdisciplinary approaches to literature. Students must do a substantial portion of their work in at least one foreign language. Although students will take many of their courses in the departments of their elected literary fields, the program in comparative literature is distinguished from national literature departments by its comparative scope and by the requirement of seminars that focus on fundamental theoretical questions regarding the nature of literature and literary inquiry. The requirements for the minor are designed to allow each student to follow a course of study that combines intellectual rigor with the pursuit of personal interests. To minor in comparative literature the following sequence of courses totaling 24 credit hours is required: Comparative Literature/Modern Language 355 (Contemporary Criticism) plus five Comparative Literature offerings or four Comparative Literature offerings plus one 300 level literature offering from Modern Languages in a language other than English.

Economics

Economics analyzes the manner in which scarce resources are utilized to satisfy the wants and needs of people and society. The Economics Department offers courses that formulate, interpret, and explore ideas concerning such topics as unemployment, inflation, production and distribution, economic growth, and international economic relations. Courses emphasize the need for accurate knowledge of business institutions and economic phenomena, for theories capable of explaining these phenomena, for estimating relationships among economic variables, and for testing explanations. This analysis then forms the foundation for policy applications and recommendations on a wide range of issues.

Students learn to analyze economic data to identify and address problems that arise in a changing national and global economy, while studying the broader historical and social context in which economic relationships occur and economic policies are applied. In addition to economic theory and quantitative methods, courses cover a range of topics such as international trade, urban economics, economic history, the role of the government in the economy, money and banking, economic development, labor markets, poverty, environmental economics, and gender.

The department prepares students for careers in business, financial institutions, government and public service, graduate work in economics, law and in other areas such as business administration.

DePaul offers Economics as both a major and minor field of study through both the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences and the College of Commerce. In addition, the Department of Economics offers the Accelerated Bachelor-Master of Science in Economics and Policy Analysis that leads to completion of both the undergraduate and graduate degrees in five years.

Departmental Program Requirements

Economics: ECO 105 Principles of Microeconomics; ECO 106 Principles of Macroeconomics; ECO 305 Intermediate Microeconomics; ECO 306 Intermediate Macroeconomics; and six additional Economics courses.

ECO 395 The Capstone Seminar in Economics may not be used as an Economics Elective.

Mathematics: MAT 135 Business Calculus I; MAT 136 Business Calculus II; MAT 137 Business Statistics (or an equivalent statistics course approved by an Economics advisor). MAT 150 and MAT 151 may be substituted for MAT 135 & MAT 136.

Degree Conferral Requirements: All ECO courses and any courses used toward the ECO major must be completed with a minimum grade of C-. All ECO courses and any courses used toward the ECO major must equal a minimum grade point average of 2.0 when combined.

CURRICULAR SPECIALIZATIONS: The six Economics electives should be selected from the following. The department offers three recommendations for students who would like to focus their studies on one area of expertise. These areas are optional; no curricular specialization is required for the major.

International Focus
- ECO 316 European Economic History
- ECO 330 Economics of Socialism
- ECO 333 Topics in Global Economics
- ECO 334 Understanding China’s Economy
- ECO 340 Development of Economic Thought
- ECO 360 Economics of Low-Income Countries
- ECO 361 International Trade
- ECO 362 International Monetary Economics
- ECO 398 Special Topics

Public Policy and Pre-Law
- ECO 310 Urban Economics
- ECO 312 The Chicago Economy
- ECO 313 Economics of Regulation & Antitrust Laws
- ECO 314 Economics of the Public Sector
- ECO 315 Introduction to Money & Banking
- ECO 317 American Economic History
- ECO 318 Labor Economics and Organization
- ECO 319 Economics and Gender
- ECO 320 Economics of Religion
- ECO 321 Law & Economics
- ECO 335 Energy & Environmental Economics
- ECO 398 Special Topics

Quantitative Economics
- ECO 375 Introduction to Econometrics
- ECO 380 Mathematical Economics
- ECO 398 Special Topics: Game Theory
- Further coursework in econometrics can be taken from the Graduate School via ECO 399 Independent Study with departmental permission

Students are encouraged to use their open electives to minor or double major in a complementary field of study. A students specific interest in economics will dictate the best choice of a minor or double major.

UNIQUE ASPECTS: DePaul offers Economics as both a major and minor field of study through both the College of Commerce and the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences. Economics integrates the study of business with traditional liberal arts and social science.
Accelerated Bachelor-Master Program

Accelerated Bachelor-Master of Science in Economics and Policy Analysis

The Accelerated Bachelor-Master of Science in Economics and Policy Analysis program allows strong undergraduate economics majors to complete both the undergraduate degree with a major in Economics (either Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science in Commerce) and the M.S.-EPA in 5 years.

The M.S in Economics and Policy Analysis gives students a distinguished and marketable set of skills in economic theory as it applies to policy analysis. In this 13 course program, students learn how to conduct statistical and econometric research grounded in sound economic models using data from multiple sources on different policy issues. In addition, students will be able to explain their results and policy recommendations not only to economists, but also to non-economists, politicians, and the general public. M.S.-EPA graduates can find employment in the private sector working for corporations in governmental relations or business development departments, in government and government agencies, in trade associations or lobbying firms, or in not-for-profit advocacy groups.

In this course of study, students will:

- Develop a Masters level knowledge of microeconomic theory, macroeconomic theory, and international economics.
- Learn the economic and political functions of government and how the two functions interact with each other in the public sector.
- Learn to conduct econometric research -- collect, interpret, manipulate, and analyze policy-related data.
- Develop writing skills to communicate research findings to a variety of audiences including business professionals, economists, policy makers, and the public at large.
- Have the opportunity to participate in Congressional Research Fellowships which will give students hands-on experience in a policy making environment. The fellowships will also allow students to develop extensive career networks which lead to employment opportunities. Graduates can pursue careers in both the private and public sectors as analysts in trade associations, in business development and government relations departments, and in all levels of the public sector.

Undergraduate students will apply to the program during their junior year and will take three graduate level courses during their senior year. The three courses are ECO 505 Advanced Microeconomics, ECO 515 Microeconomics of Market Organization, and ECO 507 Research Methods for Policy Analysis I. These three courses will count towards completion of the B.A. with a major in Economics or BSC with a major in Economics and will also count towards completion of the M.S.-EPA. The undergraduate degree will be awarded at the completion of all undergraduate work while the M.S.-EPA will be awarded upon completion of the remaining graduate level work.

Additional details on eligibility for the accelerated program including the application process may be found online at http://economics.depaul.edu/Programs/Accelerated_Bachelor-Master/index.asp .

Additional information on the M.S.-EPA degree including course requirements may be found online at http://sr.depaul.edu/catalog/catalogfiles/Current/Charles%20H%20Kellstadt%20Graduate%20School%20of%20Business/pg85.html .

ECONOMICS MINOR

The student must take Economics 105 and 106 and four additional courses to bring the total credits in Economics to a minimum of 24 credit hours.

Degree Conferral Requirements: All ECO courses and any courses used toward the ECO minor must be completed with a minimum grade of C-. All ECO courses and any courses used toward the ECO minor must equal a minimum grade point average of 2.0 when combined.

TEACH PROGRAM

This program provides students the opportunity to complete in five years a Bachelor of Arts in Economics and a Masters of Education degree with State of Illinois secondary teaching certification in Social Science. As a combined degree program of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education, the program is collaboratively developed, governed, and taught by faculty from both units.

Students may apply to the Program during the spring of their junior year. They must complete the Junior Year Experiential Course TCH 320, Exploring Teaching in an Urban High School, and meet other application criteria prior to applying; these include completion of at least 16 quarter credit hours at DePaul and a 3.0 GPA. During their senior year, students are required to complete a Program capstone course and three 400-level courses that count toward both their undergraduate and graduate degrees. The Masters year comprises teacher-preparation coursework that culminates with student teaching during Spring quarter. Upon graduation and the fulfilling of State of Illinois Certification requirements (which may require some additional course work in the students major and related fields), students are eligible to be certified to teach Social Studies at the 6th-12th grade levels. A full description of the Program can be found on the College of Education website in the graduate course catalog. Students interested in the Program should consult with the designated TEACH Program advisor in their home department early in their undergraduate career.

English

The English major provides familiarity with a broad range of literature in English, a firm grasp of historical and critical principles, and skill in using the written word. English students learn to appreciate the major authors, works, genres, and literary movements in the English tradition, approaching these texts both analytically and historically. This course of study teaches students to read perceptively and to write effectively, to deepen their understanding of the power of language, to think creatively and critically, and to develop an awareness of multiple points of view.

Students in the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences who major in English may choose between two concentrations: literary studies or creative writing. The department also offers minors in literature and creative writing for students majoring in other disciplines.

The Literary Studies concentration broadens and deepens students' knowledge of literature and language through a range of courses focused on historical periods, literary movements, and critical approaches to literature. They learn to read works of literature in their historical and cultural contexts; they develop their powers of textual analysis and their critical vocabulary; they examine and question the values expressed in literature; they become familiar with research methods and the structure of language; and they work towards a written style that is clear, precise, and persuasive.

The Creative Writing concentration trains students in writing imaginatively for professional publication. Students strengthen their creative skills in a variety of genres through a series of writing workshops, which they take alongside courses in literary history and analysis. They acquire a solid grounding in literary forms; they learn to think critically and creatively about how writers represent the material of everyday life; they gain insight into writing and audience through the intense study of style, voice, and genre; and they develop an understanding of some of the many standards by which literary work is judged.

In cooperation with the College of Education, the English Department also offers a concentration in Secondary English Education that satisfies the requirements for certification for teaching English at the junior high and secondary school levels. Students who want to pursue this program should consult with the College of Education.

Learning Domains
- Arts and Literature (AL)
  1 Course Required
- Philosophical Inquiry (PI)
  2 Courses Required
- Scientific Inquiry (SI)
  3 Courses Required
  (Note: One course must be a lab)
- Self, Society and the Modern World (SSMW)
  3 Courses Required
- Religious Dimensions (RD)
  2 Courses Required
- Understanding the Past (UP)
  2 Courses Required

Note: Students must earn a C- or better in this course.
Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student's primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

Literary Studies
Creative Writing
Teacher of English: Secondary Level

I. Literary Studies

Fifty-six quarter hours distributed as follows:

Core Courses: ENG 220 Reading Poetry and ENG 221 Reading Prose.
Successful completion of ENG 220 and ENG 221 constitutes Advanced Standing in English.

Studies in British Literature (Advanced Standing in English required): ENG 328 Shakespeare and four courses chosen from ENG 310 English Literature to 1500, ENG 320 English Renaissance Literature, ENG 330 Restoration and Eighteenth-Century English Literature, ENG 340 Nineteenth-Century English Literature, or ENG 350 Modern British Literature.

Studies in American Literature (Advanced Standing in English required): Two courses chosen from ENG 360 American Literature to 1830, ENG 361 American Literature 1830-1865, ENG 362 American Literature 1865-1920, or ENG 363 American Literature since 1920. At least one course must cover American Literature before 1865 (i.e. ENG 360 or ENG 361).

Electives. Five electives in English, three of which must be at the 300 level. The remaining two electives may be 200- or 300-level courses. In consultation with their advisors, they may substitute up to two 200- or 300-level courses in Writing, Rhetoric, and Discourse (WRD).

Diverse Traditions. English majors must take at least one course in English designated as Diverse Traditions. These courses focus on historically under-represented authors and groups. Diverse Traditions courses are designated as such in the quarterly schedules.
II. Creative Writing

Fifty-six quarter hours distributed as follows:

Core Courses: ENG 220 Reading Poetry and ENG 221 Reading Prose. Successful completion of ENG 220 and ENG 221 constitutes Advanced Standing in English.

Creative Writing (Advanced Standing in English required): ENG 201 Creative Writing and four writing workshop courses, including ENG 291 Intermediate Fiction or ENG 292 Intermediate Poetry and three additional writing workshops chosen from ENG 307 Advanced Poetry Writing, ENG 308 Advanced Fiction Writing, or ENG 309 Topics in Writing on appropriate topics (e.g., Writing for Magazines, The Literary Essay, The Short Story Cycle, Travel Writing, and other topics).

Literary Analysis (Advanced Standing in English required): Three courses including one course in Genre Studies (i.e., ENG 364 American Genre Studies, ENG 365 Modern American Fiction, ENG 366 Modern Poetry, ENG 375 Studies in Short Fiction, or topics courses on genre); one Major Authors course (i.e., ENG 311 Chaucer, ENG 327 Milton, ENG 328 Shakespeare, or ENG 382 Major Authors); and one historical survey or topics course in a historical period (e.g., ENG 310 or 319 on Medieval Literature, ENG 320 or 329 on Renaissance Literature, ENG 330 or 339 on Restoration and Eighteenth-Century English Literature, ENG 340 or 349 on Nineteenth-Century English Literature, ENG 350 or 359 on Modern British Literature, ENG 360 American Literature to 1830, ENG 361 American Literature 1830-1865, ENG 362 American Literature 1865-1920, or ENG 363 American Literature since 1920).

Electives. Four electives in English, three of which must be at the 300 level. The remaining elective may be a 200- or 300-level course. In consultation with their advisors, they may substitute up to two 200- or 300-level courses in Writing, Rhetoric, and Discourse (WRD).

Diverse Traditions. English majors must take at least one course in English designated as Diverse Traditions. These courses focus on historically underrepresented authors and groups. Diverse Traditions courses are designated as such in the quarterly schedules.

III. Teacher of English: Secondary Level

In cooperation with the College of Education, the English Department offers a concentration that satisfies the requirements for certification for teaching English at the junior high and secondary school levels. (Students in this program are enrolled in the College of Education.)

Core courses: ENG 211 Language and Style, ENG 220 Reading Poetry, and ENG 221 Reading Prose. Successful completion of ENG 220 and ENG 221 constitutes Advanced Standing in English.

Studies in British Literature (Advanced Standing in English required): ENG 328 Shakespeare and three courses chosen from ENG 310 English Literature to 1500, ENG 320 English Renaissance Literature, ENG 330 Restoration and Eighteenth Century English Literature, ENG 340 Nineteenth-Century English Literature, or ENG 350 Modern British Literature.

Studies in American Literature (Advanced Standing in English required): ENG 361 American Literature 1830-1865 and two additional 300-level courses in American literature.

Electives. Two electives in English, one of which must be an upper-division course in writing, selected in consultation with the student's advisor from courses in English or in Writing, Rhetoric, and Discourse (WRD).

Diverse Traditions. English majors must take at least one course in English designated as Diverse Traditions. These courses focus on historically underrepresented authors and groups. Diverse Traditions courses are designated as such in the quarterly schedules.

Special Programs

INTERNSHIPS
A number of internships are available to qualified students who wish to acquire significant on-the-job experience in research, writing, and editing.

MINOR IN LITERATURE
Six courses in literature, at least three of which must be at the 300-level. ENG 220 Reading Poetry and ENG 221 Reading Prose are strongly recommended but not required. Note: Advanced Standing in English is required for some courses.

MINOR IN CREATIVE WRITING
Seven courses: ENG 201 Creative Writing, and three courses chosen from ENG 291, ENG 292, ENG 307, ENG 308, or ENG 309; one course chosen from ENG 211, ENG 300, or ENG 370; two courses chosen from ENG 220, ENG 221, ENG 364, ENG 365, ENG 366, or ENG 375 (or substitutions with permission of advisor).

COMBINED B.A./M.A. DEGREE PROGRAM IN ENGLISH
The English Department offers a special option to majors with a potential for graduate work: a five-year program in which the student receives the B.A. after four years and the M.A. in English after a fifth year of course work. Students in this program begin taking graduate courses in their senior year. Students should apply for this program during their junior year. The deadline date for applying is March 1.

TEACH PROGRAM
This program provides students the opportunity to complete in five years an undergraduate English major and a Masters of Education degree with State of Illinois secondary teaching certification in English/Language Arts. As a combined degree program of the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences and the College of Education, the program is collaboratively developed, governed, and taught by faculty from both units.

Students may apply to the Program during the spring of their junior year. They must complete the Junior Year Experiential Learning course, TCH 320, Exploring Teaching in an Urban High School, and meet other application criteria prior to applying; these include completion of at least 16 quarter credit hours at DePaul and a 3.0 GPA. During their senior year, students are required to complete a Program capstone course and three 400-level courses that count toward both their undergraduate and graduate degrees. The Masters year comprises teacher-preparation coursework that culminates with student teaching during Spring quarter. Upon graduation and the fulfilling of State of Illinois Certification requirements (which may require some additional course work in the students major and related fields), students are eligible to be certified to teach English at the 6th-12th grade levels.

A full description of the Program can be found on the College of Education website in the graduate course catalog. Students interested in the Program should consult with the designated TEACH Program advisor in their home department.

General Information

Geographers examine the spatial relationships between people, places, environments and economies using innovative conceptual and technological approaches. Exciting technological changes, from computer mapping software like Google Earth, to satellite image processing, and global positioning systems (GPS), make geography a fascinating discipline to study. DePaul’s geographers share a commitment to ‘hands on’ teaching and research that makes a world of difference for the people, places, environments and processes that we study. Geographers apply methods such as observation, visualization, analysis, and modeling to explain the spatial organization of human and physical environments. Geographical perspectives foster skills that have broad applications in public policy, research and the private sector. The Department of Geography teaches students to reason spatially by applying geographic techniques and information technologies, including new technologies such as Geographic Information Systems (GIS). This helps students produce sophisticated understandings of the world, its people, environments, economic structures and cultures.

By some recent estimates, Geographic Information Systems (GIS) is now a $30 billion/year industry. Along with Nanotechnology and Biotechnology, Geotechnology was named by the U.S. Bureau of Labor as one of three hot areas for job growth in 2004. Geography holds a comparative advantage as a discipline that straddles fields in the social and natural science disciplines. This breadth of scope has made geography an exceptional foundation for a variety of careers that explore questions of spatial organization and require regional knowledge. The study of geography builds a unique spatial perspective and it addresses both “human” and “physical” domains of knowledge and examines the interactions between them through space.

Description of Concentrations: The Department of Geography offers a number of pre-professional concentrations:

- Standard concentration (BA, a precursor to graduate school or as a general purpose entry-level degree)
- Urban Development and Planning (BA, opening the door to careers in urban and regional planning)
- Geotechnology (BA, a strong foundation for a career in geospatial analysis using Geotechnologies and GIS)
- Nature-Society Studies (BA, a strong focus on environmental issues and policies)
- Professional Certificate Program in Geographic Information Systems

The Professional Certificate in GIS (5 courses) is directed to professional, mid-career, and returning adult students interested in the professions served by geospatial analysis (marketing, environmental assessment, resource management, real estate, and intelligence). It is also available to current DePaul students as an enhancement of their major field.

Located in the Lincoln Park neighborhood on Chicago's northside, DePaul's Department of Geography was founded in 1948 by Dr. Richard Houk, currently Professor Emeritus. Over the last sixty years, the Department has grown and developed to reflect changes in the geographic discipline, in technology, and the labor market. Today, the Department includes seven full-time faculty who, alongside adjunct faculty instructors, teach a wide variety of courses within several subdisciplinary and topical areas.

As the largest Geography Department in the Chicago metropolitan region, we are positioned extremely well to be the major provider of post-secondary and professional Geography degrees and certificates. With our commitment to critical human geography and to strong specializations in Urban Geography, Geotechnologies (GIS and Remote Sensing), Cultural and Environmental Geography, we offer high quality programs that lead to careers in government, GIS, community and international development, environmental management, and intelligence, to name a few. The majority of our alumni continue their studies at the graduate level in Geography, Urban Planning, and other natural and social sciences. Recent graduates have joined M.A. or Ph.D. programs in Geography, Urban Planning, Urban Studies, and International Relations at universities such as Rutgers University, Tufts University, University of Illinois at Chicago, the University of Chicago, and the University of Colorado at Boulder.

Note: * Students must earn a C- or better in this course.

Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student’s primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

I. Standard Geography Program

Required Core (6 Courses):
- Geography: 101 Earth's Physical Landscape
- 103 Urbanization
- 170 Earth's Cultural Landscape or 172 Cultural Geography
- 241 Geographic Information Systems I
- 299 Nature of Geography
- 300 Geographical Inquiry

Concentration Core (4 Courses with consent of advisor):
- Geography: 133 Urban Geography–Experiential Learning
- 200 Sustainable Cities
- 201 Geopolitics
- 205 Justice, Inequality, and the Urban Environment
- 210 Environmental Conservation
- 215 International Development and Regional Inequality
- 220 Dynamic Ocean
- 225 Weather and Climate
- 233 Comparative Urbanism
- 260 Global Resources
- 266 The World Economy
- 269 Political Ecology
- 310 Green Infrastructure
- 333 Urban Planning
- 395 Special Topics

Methods and Techniques: (1 course with consent of advisor):
- Geography: 242 GIS II (pre-req. GEO 241)
- 243 Remote Sensing
- 391 Research Techniques (pre-req. GEO 241)

Regional Geographic Surveys: (any 1 course listed as Regional Analyses)

Supporting Fields:
- Five courses selected from course offerings in Anthropology, History of Art and Architecture, Economics, Environmental Sciences, Geography, History, International Studies, Political Science, Public Policy Studies, Real Estate, Sociology, and any other discipline or program selected in consultation with the students advisor.

Open elective credit also is required to meet the minimum graduation requirement of 192 hours.

Geography: 242 GIS II (pre-req. GEO 241); 243 Remote Sensing; 344 GIS III (pre-req. GEO242); 391 Research Techniques (pre-req. GEO 241).
Systematic Surveys and Seminars: (1 course)
Geography: 200 Sustainable Cities; 205 Justice, Inequality, and the Urban Environment; 220 Dynamic Ocean; 225 Weather and Climate; 266 The World Economy.

Supporting Fields: (5 courses with consent of advisor)
PPS 202 Public Policy and Environmental Issues; plus four environment-themed courses selected from offerings in Anthropology, History of Art and Architecture, Economics, Environmental Science, Geography, History, International Studies, Political Science, Public Policy Studies, Sociology, and any other discipline or program selected in consultation with the students advisor.

Open elective credit also is required to meet the minimum graduation requirement of 192 hours.

Special Programs
GEOGRAPHY MINORS, GIS CERTIFICATE AND CITIES MINOR
Five additional programs are offered. Three Geography minors requiring a minimum of 24 hours of course work are currently offered through the department: Standard Geography Minor, Urban Geography and Planning Minor, Nature-Society Studies Geography Minor. Geography also offers two special programs; a Certificate in Geographic Information Systems (GIS) and the interdisciplinary Cities Minor (jointly offered with History of Art and Architecture). All students pursuing these programs should declare them online with LA&S and contact the Department of Geography to be assigned a faculty advisor.

I. STANDARD GEOGRAPHY MINOR
Two core courses are required:
- GEO 101 - Earth’s Physical Landscape
- GEO 170 - Earth’s Cultural Landscape or 172 - Cultural Geography

Any four additional Geography courses from the 200 or 300 level are required. Courses should be selected with the approval of the students Geography faculty advisor.

II. URBAN GEOGRAPHY AND PLANNING MINOR
Two core courses are required:
- GEO 103 Urbanization
- GEO 233 Comparative Urbanism

An additional four courses selected from the following:
- GEO 133 Urban Geography--Experiential Learning (JYEL)
- GEO 200 Sustainable Cities
- GEO 205 Justice, Inequality, and the Urban Environment
- GEO 230 Transportation Issues and Development
- GEO 241 GIS I
- GEO 299 Nature of Geography
- GEO 310 Green Infrastructure
- GEO 331 Chicago: Spatial Anatomy of a Metropolis
- GEO 333 Urban Planning
- GEO 339 Topics in Architecture and Urbanism
- GEO 395 Special Topics (as applicable)

Courses should be selected with the consent of the students Geography faculty advisor.

III. NATURE-SOCIETY STUDIES GEOGRAPHY MINOR
Two core courses are required:
- GEO 101 Earth’s Physical Landscape
- GEO 210 Environmental Conservation

An additional four courses selected from the following:
- GEO 200 Sustainable Cities
Courses should be selected with the consent of the student's Geography faculty advisor.

IV. CERTIFICATE PROGRAM IN GEOGRAPHIC INFORMATION SYSTEMS (GIS)
The Certificate Program requires 20 hours of instruction. It provides sophisticated education in cartography/GIS and proper training for employment in the geotechnology industry. There are five required courses to complete the certificate:

- GEO 241 - GIS I (pre-req. LSP 120)
- GEO 242 - GIS II (pre-req. GEO 241)
- GEO 243 - Remote Sensing
- GEO 344 - GIS III (pre-req. GEO 242)
- GEO 391 - Research Techniques (pre-req. GEO 241)

GEO 241, 242 and 344 must be taken in sequence. GEO 241 is a pre-requisite for GEO 391. GEO 243 can be taken at any time. Please contact the Department if you are considering pursuing the GIS Certificate, even if you are a declared Geography Major.

In order to earn a certificate in GIS, a student must:

- Earn at least a grade of C- in each certificate course and a GPA of no less than 2.0 for all courses in the certificate.
- Earn at least a cumulative GPA of 2.0 for all courses applied to the certificate.
- Earn a letter grade. The pass / fail option may not be selected for courses in the GIS certificate.

V. CITIES MINOR
The interdisciplinary Cities Minor brings together the prominent emphases on the material landscapes and cultural environments of the city evident in Geography courses and History of Art and Architecture courses. While both History of Art and Architecture and Geography have different kinds of theoretical or historical questions, they nevertheless strongly overlap when considering how the specific geographic spaces of cities unfold as particular spatial and cultural constructs. Courses in the minor thus explore the variety of ways in which the spaces of cities relate to their historical/geographical materiality. In this sense, culture is broadly construed to encompass the spatial, aesthetic, linguistic, and other social practices that define the material and phenomenological particularities of cities.

The Cities Minor requires the completion of six courses (24 credits). There are 4 core required courses (best taken first):

- GEO 103 Urbanization
- GEO 233 Comparative Urbanism
- HAA 280 History of Premodern Architecture (formerly ART 370)
- HAA 281 History of Modern Architecture (formerly ART 371)

Students then take one additional Geography course from this list:

- GEO 133 Urban Geography - Experiential Learning
- GEO 200 Sustainable Cities
- GEO 205 Justice, Inequality and the Urban Environment
- GEO 331 Chicago - Spatial Anatomy of a Metropolis (formerly GEO321)
- GEO 333 Urban Planning (formerly titled City Problems and Planning)

And one course listed by History of Art and Architecture as 'World Cities' (see: http://las.depaul.edu/haa/Courses/300Level/index.asp).

Additional courses may be substituted with the consent of an advisor in the Department of Geography or History of Art and Architecture. No more than three courses can come from the same department as the student's major.

TEACH PROGRAM
This program provides students the opportunity to complete in five years an undergraduate Geography major and a Masters of Education degree with State of Illinois secondary teaching certification in Social Science. As a combined degree program of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education, the program is collaboratively developed.
Students may apply to the Program during the spring of their junior year. They must complete the Junior Year Experiential Course TCH 320, Exploring Teaching in an Urban High School, and meet other application criteria prior to applying; these include completion of at least 16 quarter credit hours at DePaul and a 3.0 GPA. During their senior year, students are required to complete a Program capstone course and three 400-level courses that count toward both their undergraduate and graduate degrees. The Masters year comprises teacher-preparation coursework that culminates with student teaching during Spring quarter. Upon graduation and the fulfilling of State of Illinois Certification requirements (which may require some additional course work in the students major and related fields), students are eligible to be certified to teach Social Studies at the 6th-12th grade levels.

A full description of the Program can be found on the College of Education website in the graduate course catalog. Students interested in the Program should consult with the designated TEACH Program advisor in their home department early in their undergraduate career.
Global Asian Studies

Global Asian Studies is an interdisciplinary program that critically examines literary and cultural expression, political, social and economic struggles and the contributions of Asian migrants outside of their home countries in the modern era.

Faculty from American Studies; Art, Media, & Design; Chinese Studies; Communications; English; International Studies; Japanese Studies; Latin American/Latino Studies; Modern Languages, among others teach courses in Global Asian Studies. Global Asian Studies thus contributes to developing a fuller and more accurate account of global culture, national and ethnic identity formation and examines the particular ways Asian and Pacific Islanders have articulated their identities in the context of national, social and economic struggles for human and civil rights.

Because there is no single Asian identity, our program defines the subject of study broadly and inclusively; we study recent migrants and settled communities, ethnic and national groups from East, South, and Southeast Asia including India, China, Japan, Korea, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, as well as the Pacific Islands and the Philippines.

Global Asian Studies program is currently a stand-alone minor program within the college of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences at DePaul University.

Unique Aspects

The minor program employs interdisciplinary analysis and approaches from the humanities and social sciences. The program faculty draw upon local and Midwestern Asian American communities to combine university scholarship and classroom teaching. An Asian American Studies minor offers students analytic and critical thinking skills and encourages a lifelong pursuit of strategies for community empowerment and social change.

Students take two required courses and four elective courses offered under the rubric of Global Asian Studies to complete the minor. Many of our courses can also be taken to fulfill domain credits. Our faculty also offer Sophomore Seminar in Multiculturalism courses on Asian American Art, Asian American Experiences in the U.S. and on Immigrant Entrepreneurs, all of which focus on Asian American communities.

Every other year we also offer a Study Abroad program in Hawaii during December term.

Faculty Highlights

This interdisciplinary minor program draws from over twenty faculty members from across the University to contribute to the program. Areas of expertise include:
American studies, pan-Asian American studies, art and art history, Chinese studies, creative writing, cultural studies, film studies, history, inter and pan-ethnic studies, Japanese studies, Latin American and Latino studies, literature, law, media studies, political science, religious studies, sociology, and women and gender studies.

Program Highlights

In addition to offering courses, which students can take towards the minor and for domain credit, the Global Asian Studies program provides students with quality co-curricular activities. We bring in speakers and performers of national renown to provide the latest theoretical, scholarly, or popular culture developments in the field of Global Asian Studies. These co-curricular activities provide a contemporary link between in-class learning and out-of-the-classroom experiences and are open to the public.

Career Possibilities

Global Asian Studies can lead to a number of career paths in law, academia and the non-profit sector. Students career trajectories in our program range from studio art, literature, history, and modern languages to sociology, psychology, sociology, and law. What they have in common is an interest in Asian and Pacific American and diaspora history and issues of social justice.

"From its origins in the civil rights era, Asian American Studies has been an emergent project intellectually and institutionally. It tracks the growth and evolution of a highly heterogeneous population constantly shifting in location, arrival narratives, socioeconomic class, cultural formations, political identifications, and demography." - Association for Asian American Studies

As a field it is closely related to American studies, Asian studies, history, international business, political science and government, and sociology. Our students go on to graduate school where they can continue their investigation of Global Asian-related scholarship or enroll in professional programs, such as law school or social work. Among other occupations, Global Asian Studies related careers include: advertising, marketing, and public relations managers; arts (visual, performing, literary, music) and media; child, family and school social workers; curators; elementary, middle, and high school teachers; government executives and legislators; historians; human resource managers; postsecondary teachers; philanthropy.

Registering for and Completing the Minor

Declaring a Minor

- Go to: http://las.depaul.edu/StudentServices/UgradAcademicAdvising/UgradForms/DeclarationOfMajor.asp
- Click on Declaration of Major, Minor and Concentration and fill out the form declaring Global Asian Studies as your minor.

Please contact the program director for advising or with any questions concerning the program (see the faculty list).

Once you have declared Global Asian Studies as your minor, the approved Global Asian Studies courses you take will automatically be credited towards the minor.

Courses Offered Each Year

Not all the courses approved for Global Asian Studies are offered each year. We seek to offer the two core courses, AAS 100 and AAS 200, at least once per year. AAS 100 is typically offered in the fall and AAS 200 is offered in the Winter and/or Spring. The Study Abroad trip to Hawai‘i is usually offered during December every other year. Our approved elective course offerings vary from quarter to quarter. Please refer to the Program Degree Requirements for a complete list of approved elective courses. Refer to Campus Connect and the Global Asian Studies website for the latest offerings.

Liberal Studies

Many of the Global Asian Studies core and elective courses also qualify for credit in Liberal Studies such as AAS 100 (Self, Society and the Modern World); AAS 200/HST 283 (Understanding the Past: North America); AAS 201 (Arts & Literature); AAS 223/REL 223 (Religious Dimensions: Religious and Ethical Questions); AAS 290/ENG 272 (Arts & Literature); PSY 221 (Self, Society, and the Modern World). However, please confirm this information and view a complete listing of Liberal Studies courses at the Liberal Studies Program website.

Minor Requirements

A total of 24 credits (6 courses) for the completion of Global Asian Studies minor. Eight credits (2 courses) are required and 16 credits (4 courses) are electives.

2 CORE COURSES:

AAS 100: Global Asia
This course examines contemporary experiences of Asians in America and the diaspora. The historical focus is post-1965 and encompasses immigrant groups such as: Chinese, Japanese, Filipinos, Indians, Koreans, Pakistanis, Bangladeshis, and Southeast Asians.

AAS 200: Asian American History
This course examines the creation of Asian America by first and second-generation Asian migrants to the Americans from the 1840s to World War II.
The course provides a historical, legal, social and cultural framework for understanding the resurgence of Asian migration since the 1960s.

4 ELECTIVES:
The four elective courses can be either 200 or 300 level courses chosen from the following:

AAS 201: Asian American Arts & Culture
This course examines Asian American arts and cultural productions in relation to the histories of people groups with roots in Asia and the Pacific. The course focuses on contemporary visual arts from the emergence of Asian American movement in the 1960s and 1970s to the multiculturalism of the 1980s and 1990s to our present transnational and diasporic moment.

AAS 202: Asian American Literature
This course will serve as an overview of Asian American literature in a socio-historical context. Special emphasis will be placed on tracing the various paradigms through which these works have been produced, from texts written prior to the movement towards self-determination during the 1960s; to works identified with the cultural nationalism promoted during the 1960s and 1970s; to the pluralism of the 1980s which explored how gender, sexual orientation, and class complicate earlier essentialist conceptions of racial identity; and finally to the transnational and diasporic interests of the 1990s. Texts covered will include primarily fiction (novels and short stories), but also critical essays, plays, movies, and poetry.

AAS 220 American Buddhism
This course critically analyzes the origins of Buddhism in the United States in order to fully understand how and why Buddhism has flourished in Asian and White American communities, and to understand the conflict and controversy surrounding the racial dynamics of religious choice.

AAS 223 Tales of India
(Cross-listed with REL 223: Literature and the Sacred: Tales of India)
Before the modern nation-states of India and Pakistan came into being, the term India referred to the South Asian region, a region that has been and is the home of many cultures and societies. These cultures have also reached beyond the region to create rich and paradoxical diaspora experiences in Europe and the Americas. Tales of India will explore a variety of literatures, ancient and contemporary, that illuminate the worlds of South Asian peoples in their homelands and in the transnational life of the diaspora. Themes will include love, power, religious meaning/religious identity, and cultural difference.

AAS 290 Special Topics in Asian American Studies
This course, which varies from quarter to quarter, explores topics in Asian-American studies.

AAS 343 Japanese American History in the US/Chicago
(Cross-listed with JPN 343)
The second course in a sequence of three content-based courses designed for advanced high learners and native speakers of Japanese to discuss authentic cultural, historical, or literary materials. Topics vary with offering: see current schedule for details. Recommended for students who have completed JPN 201-202-203 and JPN 311-312-313, or have equivalent proficiency in Japanese.

Utilizing an ecological systems perspective, this course examines the challenges and resiliencies faced and acquired by ethnic minority youth. This course will closely examined developmental issues during adolescence that are complicated by being an ethnic minority, or child of immigrant parents. Issues examining the intersection of socio-political power dynamics, with acculturation/cultural adaptation, ethnic identity formation, and intergenerational family conflict will particularly be examined.

AAS 395 Independent Study in Asian American Studies
Our classes will either be cross-listed with the courses below or students may choose to take the following courses towards AAS elective credit:
AMS 265 Contested Frontiers: Imaging the American West
AMS 220 American Buddhisms
AMS 265 Pacific World: North America and the Pacific 1776-1945
AMS 395 Special Topics - American Studies: Hawaii and the American Imagination; Mixed Race
CMNS 337 Asian American Media Representation
ENG 272 Literature and Identity: Asian American Literature
ENG 367 Literature of the Vietnam War
HAA 397 Special Topics - Silk Road
INT 320 West and South Asian Area Studies
INT 388 Forced Migration

History

As the American Historical Association has noted, we all interpret and narrate the past, which is to say that we all participate in making history. It is among our most fundamental tools for understanding ourselves and the world around us. The History Department at DePaul University embraces this idea, and is committed to engaging with students, the university, and the wider community in an ongoing effort to understand the past and its varied meanings, the critical and scholarly debates through which we gain such understanding, and the relationship of the past to the problems of the present.

The history program at DePaul combines a breadth of chronological and geographical coverage with the opportunity to develop a concentration in a student’s fields of interest. Instruction emphasizes the humanistic as well as the social scientific dimension of the field. One-hundred and two-hundred-level courses (lower division) provide surveys of Asian, African, European, Latin American, North American and World and Comparative History. A main focus of these lower division courses is teaching students how to evaluate primary sources. Three-hundred-level courses (upper division) concentrate on historical debates within specific fields. All courses stress development of research, writing and oral communications skills.

The history major gives students a broad base of knowledge and skills applicable to a variety of careers. Many of our graduates go on to work in the fields of education and law. Others pursue jobs in government and politics; museums, historical societies, and libraries; and business and commercial ventures. A wide range of employers find that history majors have honed critical analytical and communications skills, making them ideal candidates for positions of requiring responsibility and independent work habits.

Note:
* Students must earn a C- or better in this course.
Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student's primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

Departmental Programs Requirements
100 and 200 level courses count toward the fulfillment of the major and toward Understanding the Past Liberal Studies requirements. The courses at this level emphasize critical reading skills, primary source analysis, and essay writing. The work load at this level entail an average of between 50 to 100 pages of reading per week.

300 level courses have as a prerequisite completion of the History 298-299 sequence (or the consent of the instructor). The courses at this level promote the abilities to engage in historical research and to demonstrate the understanding of historiographic interpretation and argument, and develop the skill to present historical information orally. Written expectations involve a historiographical essay or major research paper as part of the expected outcome of the student experience in these courses. Reading for these courses entail an average of 100 to 200 pages per week.

I. Standard Concentration
II. Pre-law Concentration
III. Public History Concentration

I. Standard Concentration

Core: 3 Courses
HST 298: Introduction to Historical Sources and Methods
HST 299: The Craft of History
HST 397: Senior Capstone Seminar: The Discipline of History

Lower Division Courses: Students take 5 courses at the 100 or 200 level (except 298 and 299).
Note: Honors 102 may be counted toward this lower division requirement.

Upper Division Courses: Students take 7 courses at the 300 level. At least two of the upper division courses will be given over to fulfilling a sequenced history practicum requirement. The sequence consists of a 300-level course and a linked section of HST 390: Practicum in Historical Research and Writing. Students are encouraged to develop a thematic or topical focus in consultation with their advisor.

Open Electives: 13 courses

II. Pre-law Concentration

Core: 3 Courses
HST 298: Introduction to Historical Sources and Methods
HST 299: The Craft of History
HST 397: Senior Capstone Seminar: The Discipline of History

Lower Division Courses: Students take 5 courses at the 100 or 200 level.

Upper Division Courses: The Pre-Law Concentration specifies that the 7 upper division courses be distributed as follows:

Students take both HST 388: Supreme Court and the Bill of Rights; and HST 395: Issues in Non-U.S. Law

Two courses from the following list: HST 385, 386, 301, 308, 328, 331, 332, 335, 371, 379, or any 300-level Topics course with a relevant topic

III. Public History Concentration

Core: 3 Courses
HST 298: Introduction to Historical Sources and Methods
HST 299: The Craft of History
HST 397: Senior Capstone Seminar: The Discipline of History

Lower Division Courses: Students take 5 courses at the 100 or 200 level. One of these must be HST 269: Introduction to Public History

Upper Division Courses: The Public History Concentration specifies that the 7 upper division courses be distributed as follows:

HST 392: Public History Internship
Two of the Following: HST 391; HST 396; HST 389 Topics in Public History; HST 382 Chicago History Museum Advanced Seminar.

Three 300-level Electives

HST 390: Practicum in Historical Research and Writing

Open Electives: 13 courses

---

Special Programs

HISTORY MINOR
History minors must take six history courses (24 credit hours) in History. These include HST 298 and HST 299; two lower division courses (100 or 200 level); and two upper division courses (300 level).

TEACH PROGRAM
This program provides students the opportunity to complete in five years an undergraduate History major and a Masters of Education degree with State of Illinois secondary teaching certification in History. As a combined degree program of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education, the program is collaboratively developed, governed, and taught by faculty from both units.

Students may apply to the Program during the spring of their junior year. They must complete the Junior Year Experiential Course TCH 320, Exploring Teaching in an Urban High School, and meet other application criteria prior to applying; these include completion of at least 16 quarter credit hours at DePaul and a 3.0 GPA. During their senior year, students are required to complete a Program capstone course and three 400-level courses that count toward both their undergraduate and graduate degrees. The Masters year comprises teacher-preparation coursework that culminates with student teaching during Spring quarter. Upon graduation and the fulfilling of State of Illinois Certification requirements (which may require some additional course work in the students major and related fields), students are eligible to be certified to teach History at the 6th-12th grade levels.

A full description of the Program can be found on the College of Education website in the graduate course catalog. Students interested in the Program should consult with the designated TEACH Program advisor in their home department.

History of Art and Architecture

The Department of the History of Art and Architecture familiarizes DePaul students with works of art that define civilizations around the world from their emergence to the present day. The study of art is integral to the development of human knowledge and thus consistent with the academic goals of DePaul University as well as a liberal arts education. We extend the Vincentian mission in our particular focus on comparative culture and art in its urban setting. In an increasingly interconnected world, art history encourages a critical engagement with the visual and its role in individual and social formation.

The study of art and architectural history prepares students for a wide variety of careers and post-graduate pursuits. Thus, all of our classes foster critical thinking by developing visual literacy, close reading, persuasive writing, research skills and oral communication. Taking advantage of the rich cultural resources of Chicago through classroom lectures, discussions and site visits to exhibits, museums, and architectural monuments, students come to understand how art is produced and how it operates in its social and historical moment. In more advanced classes, students become well-versed in the nature of the field and its current and traditional theoretical issues. In these classes, too, consideration is given to the professional world, including museums, galleries, cultural institutions, and the global art market.

All of these goals are consistent with our professional aspirations, not only as faculty, but as scholars who distinguish ourselves by the breadth of our geographical and chronological interests and through our record of publishing and professional achievements. Although our approaches vary widely, we are united in our shared interest in the creative, social, and political forces that both determine and emanate from all works of art.

Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student’s primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

- One (1) Studio Art course
- HAA 399: Senior Capstone: Art Historical Theory & Methodology (Formerly ART 380: Art Historical Theory and Methodology)

Minor Requirements

The Department of the History of Art and Architecture currently offers two minors: a minor in the History of Art and Architecture and the Cities Minor, offered jointly with the Department of Geography.

MINOR IN HISTORY OF ART AND ARCHITECTURE

Six courses are required for a minor in the History of Art and Architecture, including at least one of the following history of art and architecture survey courses outside of the European tradition: HAA 101: Principles of African Art (Formerly ART 246: Survey of African Art), HAA 115: Principles of Asian Art (Formerly ART 242: Survey of Asian Art), or HAA 145: Principles of Arts of the Americas.

The minor is completed with five additional 200- or 300-level history of art and architecture courses, although HAA 130: Principles of European Art (Formerly ART 102) may also count towards the minor. Students wishing to group their minor courses around a specialty should confer with the history of art and architecture professor in that specialty.

CITIES MINOR

The interdisciplinary Cities Minor brings together the prominent emphases on the material landscapes and cultural environments of the city evident in Geography courses and History of Art and Architecture courses. While both History of Art and Architecture and Geography have different kinds of theoretical or historical questions, they nevertheless strongly overlap when considering how the specific geographic spaces of cities unfold as particular spatial and cultural constructs. Courses in the minor thus explore the variety of ways in which the spaces of cities relate to their historical/geographical materiality. In this sense, culture is broadly construed to encompass the spatial, aesthetic, linguistic, and other social practices that define the material and phenomenological particularities of cities.

The Cities Minor requires the completion of six courses (24 credits). There are 4 core required courses (best taken first):

- GEO 103 Urbanization
- GEO 233 Comparative Urbanism
- HAA 280 History of Premodern Architecture (formerly ART 370)
- HAA 281 History of Modern Architecture (formerly ART 371)

Students then take one additional Geography course from this list:

- GEO 133 Urban Geography Experiential Learning
- GEO 331 Chicago Spatial Anatomy of a Metropolis (formerly GEO321)
- GEO 333 Urban Planning (formerly titled City Problems and Planning)

And one course listed by History of Art and Architecture as 'World Cities' (see: http://las.depaul.edu/haa/Courses/300Level/index.asp ).

Additional courses may be substituted with the consent of an advisor in the Department of Geography or History of Art and Architecture. No more than three courses can come from the same department as the student's major.
Course Listing by Category

100-level

100-level History of Art and Architecture courses cover large geographic areas over significant periods of time and are appropriate for majors and non-majors equally. They cover fundamental history of art and architecture skills, including visual and iconographic analysis, and introduce students to the specialized vocabulary of the discipline.

HAA 101: Principles of African Art (Formerly ART 246: Survey of African Art)
HAA 115: Principles of Asian Art (Formerly ART 242: Survey of Asian Art)
HAA 130: Principles of European Art (Formerly ART 102: Principles of Art History)
HAA 145: Principles of Arts of the Americas

200-level

200-level History of Art and Architecture courses are more focused than 100-levels, as they deal with a specific culture, period, geography or medium. While they also introduce fundamental visual and analytic art historical skills (and, hence, are appropriate for majors and non-majors alike), they further expose students to some of the methodological and theoretical debates in the field through select readings or discussions. (Note that the numberings parallel the geographic groupings of the 100-level).

HAA 201: Ancient African Art: Prehistoric to the European Encounter
HAA 202: Modern African Art: European Encounter to Independence
HAA 203: Contemporary African Art: Independence to the Present
HAA 215: Chinese Art (Formerly ART 342: Chinese Art)
HAA 216: Japanese Art (Formerly ART 343: Japanese Art)
HAA 217: Arts of India and the Himalayas
HAA 220: Buddhist Art (Formerly ART 250: Buddhist Art)
HAA 222: Islamic Art (Formerly ART 251: Islamic Art)
HAA 230: Ancient Mediterranean Art (Formerly ART 233: Ancient Art)
HAA 231: Early Medieval Art (Formerly ART 240: Early Medieval Art)
HAA 232: Late Medieval Art (Formerly ART 244: Late Medieval Art)
HAA 234: Byzantine Art (Formerly ART 397: Special Topics in Art History)
HAA 235: Russia: Medieval Moments, Imperial Days, and White Nights in Novgorod and St. Petersburg
HAA 236: Northern Renaissance Art (Formerly ART 232: Northern Renaissance Art)
HAA 237: Italian Renaissance Art (Formerly ART 241: Italian Renaissance Art)
HAA 238: Baroque Art (Formerly ART 237: Baroque Art)
HAA 239: 19th Century European Art (Formerly ART 238: 19th Century Art)
HAA 240: Art from 1900-1945 (Formerly ART 239: 20th Century Art)
HAA 242: Art from 1945-1975 (Formerly ART 322: Modernism to Postmodernism)
HAA 245: Art of the Ancient Americas (Formerly ART 247: Art of the Ancient Americas)
HAA 246: Art in the Spanish American Empire (Formerly ART 248: Colonial Latin American Art)
HAA 247: Modern Latin American Art (Formerly ART 249: Modern Latin American Art)
HAA 260: American Art (Formerly ART 335: American Art)
HAA 263: History of Design (Formerly ART 373: History of Design)
HAA 265: History of Photography (Formerly ART 376: History of Photography)
HAA 277: History of Film (Formerly ART 375)
HAA 280: History of Premodern Architecture (Formerly ART 370: History of Premodern Architecture)
HAA 281: History of Modern Architecture (Formerly ART 371: History of Modern Architecture)
HAA 288: Comparative Urbanism (Formerly ART 362: Comparative Urbanism)
HAA 297: Special Topics in History of Art & Architecture
HAA 299: Introduction to Art Historical Research and Writing

300-level

300-level History of Art and Architecture courses are research and reading intensive courses that address specialized themes or areas of art historical study. All 300-level courses require a research paper and many are taught in seminar format. They also involve discussion and analysis of contemporary historiographic debates and are particularly appropriate as a foundation for later graduate work in art history and related disciplines. (PREREQUISITE: Previous 100- or 200-level history of art and architecture course or permission of instructor)

HAA 301: African Architecture (Formerly ART 347: African Architecture)

International Studies

Using an interdisciplinary framework, the International Studies Program explores the interactions among peoples and nations that are separated by cultural and geopolitical boundaries. This field draws on the insights and findings of the social sciences (political science, economics, sociology, geography and anthropology) as well as history, literature and the arts. Students in this area master information about the origins and development of different peoples and nations, the patterns of conflict and cooperation that have shaped the relationships between nations, and issues and problems that affect the future global order. This program is designed to equip students with perspectives and skills to successfully meet challenges of any international career, including law, diplomacy, business, communication, education, public service, and research. The International Studies Program offers students the opportunity to work with their advisors to create individualized areas of concentrated study within the major.

Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student’s primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.
Departmental Program Requirements

General Requirements

In the first year at DePaul, students are encouraged to take a year of a language and as many liberal studies courses as possible. In their second year, students take INT 201 Emergence of the Modern Nation State, INT 202 International Conflict and Cooperation, and INT 203 International Movements of the 20th and 21st Centuries, as a sequence, in addition to language and liberal studies courses. Honors students should complete all two course sequences by the end of the second year. In the third year, they take INT 204 Cultural Analysis, INT 205 International Political Economy, and INT 206 Boundaries and Identities. During the last year at DePaul, students take INT 301 Senior Seminar.

Students take courses in the following allied fields, preferably before the end of their second year. These courses can be taken to fulfill Liberal Studies learning domains within the limits established by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Economics: ECO 105 Microeconomics and ECO 106 Macroeconomics. The program recommends that students whose math assessment indicates that they should take MAT 101 and MAT 130 before taking science courses should also put off taking economics courses until those math courses are completed.

Political Science: PSC 150 Political Systems of the World. Students in the Honors Program take HON 201 State, Markets and Societies instead.

Foreign Language Requirement

The minimum requirement is course work through the intermediate (106) level in a language of the students' choice; a grade of C- or better is required. However, International Studies students are expected to gain fluency in the language and to continue studying it beyond the intermediate level. Students are strongly urged to continue their work in a language through a study abroad program. In exceptional cases, students may petition the director to demonstrate foreign language proficiency by examination.

Individualized Concentration

In consultation and with the approval of their advisors, all international studies students devise a five-course concentrated area of study. This concentration should provide students with a depth of knowledge in an area that is meaningful to them. In the past, students have often chosen to focus on studies of various regions (e.g., European studies, Latin American studies), topical studies (e.g., international political economy, war and peace), and integrated studies (e.g., emerging societies, trading blocs, global environmental issues). Students are urged to select their concentration courses after they have completed the INT 201-206 sequence. Constructing the concentration is an important intellectual exercise in its own right, and helps students get the most from the program. The students advisor must certify the students concentration courses to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences prior to graduation.

It is possible to complete the geography department certificate in cartography and geographic information systems (GIS) while completing a concentration in spatial justice within the international studies major. Students pursuing this concentration take INT 368 Topics in Global Culture: Spatial Justice; GEO 241 Computer Cartography; GEO 242 Geographic Information Systems; GEO 243 Remote Sensing; and an elective that will allow the student to complete a project using these technologies while incorporating a spatial justice theme. Students wishing to pursue the spatial justice concentration should request to be assigned Dr. Nast as an advisor.

Special Programs
The minor in International Studies provides the non-major with an overview of the origins and development of peoples and their nations, patterns of conflict and cooperation that have shaped relations between peoples, and problems that affect the future global order. The following sequence of six courses totaling twenty-four credit hours is required.

International Studies: 201 The Evolution of the Modern Nation State; 202 International Conflict and Cooperation; 203 International Movements of the 20th and 21st Centuries; 204 Cultural Analysis; 205 International Political Economy; 206 Boundaries and Identities. (Note that Economics 105 and 106 are prerequisites for INT 205).

STUDY ABROAD PROGRAMS
All International Studies majors are encouraged, but not required, to participate in Study Abroad programs. No internship can better prepare you for international work than study abroad. The undergraduate years are the appropriate time to undertake this immersion in another culture. DePaul Universititsy Study Abroad program works closely with the International Studies Program in formulating opportunities for students that are intellectually rigorous and linguistically appropriate. Currently, ten- to fifteen-week programs are offered annually in France, Spain, Italy, Germany, England, Hungary, Poland, Mexico, Japan and Zimbabwe. The programs in Europe and Japan can often be extended to a full year.

EUROPEAN COMMUNITY RESEARCH INTERNSHIP
Seniors who show a strong commitment to European studies can apply to participate in the programs research internship in the European Community Commission offices in Brussels. This four-month intensive research experience is organized through the Irish Institute of European Affairs at the Catholic University of Leuven and is the only one of its kind for U.S. students. It is especially appropriate for students going to graduate school in some aspect of European Studies.

Other internationally-oriented internships are available abroad, in Washington and in the Chicago area.

Irish Studies

The Irish Studies minor is an interdisciplinary academic program focused on Ireland and its place in the world. The purpose of the minor is to give students access to another culture in order to enable them to better understand the role of culture in human society.

The study of Ireland is particularly apposite for a number of reasons:

1. Ireland has a rich history, culture and literature that in itself is worthy of study.
2. The Irish experience epitomizes a variety of processes which are of relevance to an understanding of today’s world. Among them are:
   - an experience of colonialism and development,
   - the phenomenon of emigration and diaspora,
   - a changing interaction with adjacent countries,
   - finding a place in Europe and a globalized world,
   - searching for cultural identity,
   - coping with intercommunal, political conflict and violence, and
   - reconfiguring the role of women in society.
3. How Ireland has dealt with issues such as the environment and the configuration of gender roles can provide a point of comparison for and reflection on American experience;
4. The study of Ireland provides insights on how American influence impinges on other cultures;
5. Irish immigration into the United States has proved to be a formative influence on the development of American society. The study of Ireland can contribute to the shifting search for personal and social identity within America itself.

REQUIREMENTS
Students take six courses for the minor in Irish Studies.
Students must take:
- One course from Section A History;
- One course from Section B Literature
- And one course from Section C Nature and Culture.
They will then take an additional three courses, chosen from sections A through F, with no more than one course from Section F Ancillary Studies may count towards the minor.

STUDY ABROAD
Irish Studies minors who have completed a Study Abroad course in Ireland may receive credit toward the minor of up to four courses following review and approval by the program director.

Registering for and Completing the Minor

DECLARING A MINOR: It is most important that you declare Irish Studies as your minor, as this will facilitate advising and allow you to track your progress. Visit the website of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Undergraduate Division - http://condor.depaul.edu/~lasugrad/ and click on Administrative Forms. Then click on Declaration of Program Plan. Print and fill out the form, declaring Irish Studies as your minor, and return it to LA&S College Office, 2352 N Clifton, Suite 130, Chicago, IL 60614, or Fax (773) 325-7311.

Once you have declared Irish Studies as your minor you will have access to your progress in the minor on Campus Connection. The program director will also have access to this information and this will facilitate advising. Please contact the program director see the Contact Us section of the Irish Studies site for advising or with any questions concerning the program.

Once you have declared Irish Studies as your minor the approved Irish Studies courses you take will automatically be credited towards the minor, except in the case of courses marked  above.

TOPICAL COURSES: Courses marked  are topical courses which may sometimes be on an Irish topic and sometimes not. Only when an Irish topic is offered as given in the examples in square brackets in the list of courses above will it count for the Irish Studies minor. When you register for such a course it will not automatically show up on the list of Irish Studies courses you have taken. You will need to contact the Director of Irish Studies at the beginning of the quarter, providing your name, DePaul ID number and SSN, and ask that the course be credited towards your Irish Studies minor. In due course the course will be credited towards the minor. This only applies to courses marked . The process should work automatically for other courses.

COURSES OFFERED EACH YEAR: Not all the courses approved for Irish Studies are offered each year. In the Classes for the Current Year section of the minors website http://condor.depaul.edu/~irishstd/ a list of classes for the current academic year will be available to enable you to plan your completion of the minor.

STUDY ABROAD: DUBLIN: The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offers a study abroad program in Dublin, Ireland, twice each year. It provides an excellent opportunity for students to get to know Ireland at first hand. It is not a compulsory part of the minor in Irish Studies. However, students taking part in the Study Abroad Program in Dublin who wish to take the minor in Irish Studies may gain credit toward it for two of the courses they take in Dublin. HST 398 Ireland in the 19th and 20th Centuries and ENG 398 Irish Literary Tradition which are cross listed with HST 268 Ireland, 1800-2000, Nation, Revolution and Constitution and ENG 355 Modern Irish Literature.

LIBERAL STUDIES: Many of the Irish Studies courses also qualify for credit in Liberal Studies: ENG 382 (domain: arts & literature); HST 266 & HST 268 (domain: understanding the past: Europe); REL 260 (domain: religious dimensions: religious and ethical questions); GEO 201 (domain: self, society, and the modern world). ENV
206 (domain: scientific inquiry). However, please confirm this information by accessing the Liberal Studies website: http://las.depaul.edu/lsp/public_html/index.html

Islamic World Studies

Islamic World Studies

Islamic World Studies is an interdisciplinary program offering a major and minor. Islamic World Studies courses focus on the academic study of the Islamic World. In this program Islamic civilization is viewed as a meta-culture, which grew and was sustained by an Arab core plus the accretion of knowledge from the diverse cultures that embraced it. Islamic World Studies will ground students in a study of Islam as a worldview/civilization by first engaging in an exploration of the primary texts, history, and cultural traditions and then examinations of specific communities.

A major in Islamic World Studies prepares students for graduate study and for careers in foreign policy, public policy, diplomatic corps, social services, consultation, and education. A minor in Islamic World Studies strengthens preparation for many areas of graduate study, as well as for a range of career opportunities in both traditional fields and in occupational areas. Students who would like to know more about the Islamic World Studies Program are invited to speak with the director and the other faculty members.

Latin American and Latino Studies

The Latin American and Latino Studies program explores the cultural contributions of Latin Americans to the global community and highlights perspectives and traditions that have developed in the region. It analyzes the multicultural character of the peoples of Latin America by calling attention to the complex interplay among Indigenous, European, Semitic, Arab, Asian, and African societies in the region. It explores the profound linkage that has emerged between Latin America and the United States, particularly through the construction of Latino communities in the U.S.

This interdisciplinary program explores the broad dynamics shaping Latin American and Latino experiences and draws courses and insights from the fields of film and media studies, art and art history, geography, political science, religious studies, sociology, history, anthropology, modern languages, international studies, and philosophy. Students interested in a wide range of work requiring multicultural skills, such as education, law, social work, community organizing, and business, will benefit from course work in this program. The Latin American and Latino Studies program also serves to deepen Latino students' awareness of their cultural heritage.

MAJOR

The Latin American and Latino Studies program provides a well-rounded interdisciplinary foundation for a number of career possibilities for the program major. Many students have pursued graduate work in law, journalism, education, the social sciences, and the humanities. Other possibilities include careers in international and local businesses and organizations, federal and state government agencies, non-profit organizations, community organizations, and public service. This major consists of thirteen courses.

Core Requirements (5 courses / 20 credit hours):

- LST 200 Founding Myths and Cultural Conquest in Latin America
- LST 201 Social Diversity in Latin America
- LST 202 Multiculturalism in the United States: The Construction of Latino Communities
- LST 203 Cultural Studies Across the Americas
- LST 390 Capstone Seminar

Spanish Requirement (2 courses / 8 credit hours):

- Two 200-level or 300-level Spanish courses
  For majors whose Spanish language skills place them beyond the 200-level, a minimum of two 300-level Spanish courses is required. Students who need to complete the three-course intermediate Spanish language sequence prerequisite for the major may substitute the sequence for two Liberal Studies domain courses and one open elective.

Areas of Concentration (6 courses / 24 credit hours):

In addition to the core requirements and Spanish requirement, in consultation with a program advisor, majors choose an additional six elective courses. In selecting courses, students are encouraged to concentrate in one of the following four areas:

Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student's primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.
• Historical Processes and Interpretations of the Americas
  The courses in this concentration explore the historical processes that have created and continue to shape the diverse people living in the Americas throughout the centuries, focusing specifically on the peoples of Latin American origins and by calling attention to the complex interplay among Indigenous, African, European, Arab, Asian and Semitic societies in the region. This concentration provides the methodological and theoretical tools to analyze longitudinally and comparatively key historical issues such as colonization, imperialism, militarism, revolution, the struggles for liberation and self-determination, nationalism, and the creation of borders and boundaries, as well as the development of unique art and literary expressions.

• Contemporary Transformations in the Americas
  This concentration focuses on the political, economic, and socio-cultural transformations that have profoundly shaped the Americas in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. Courses in this concentration address issues such as authoritarian and democratic regimes of governance, state-interventionist and neoliberal economies, national and transnational forms of belonging, as well as the new modes of institutional exclusion and socio-cultural formation. In choosing this concentration, students will grapple with key figures, events, and movements in the Americas.

  This concentration includes the study of cultural productions—e.g. art, film, television, literature—and the major theoretical and ideological trends of cultural studies in the Americas. This concentration takes a hemispheric or Inter-American approach to the study of cultural productions, taking into account the impact of social, economic, and political exchanges on the circulation of culture across the hemisphere. Courses in this concentration explore issues relating to the representation of transnational migration, race, ethnicity, sexuality, gender, class, and indigeneity.

The Latina/o Studies concentration allows students to choose from an array of intellectually challenging, multidisciplinary courses that introduce cutting-edge scholarship on the Latina/o populations of the United States. Our courses familiarize students with the nation's fast-growing, diverse, transnational Latina/o populations, including their histories, ongoing connections to Latin America, cultures, and social conditions. Courses offer students the opportunity to focus on individual Latina/o communities in the country and to engage in comparative analysis of the various Latina/o communities. Students can select courses that concentrate on current socioeconomic and political issues facing Latinos in the U.S., as well as others that capture Latina/o expression in literature, music, and the arts. Some courses in this concentration involve students in collaborative projects with Chicago based Latina/o community organizations, civic programs, and other service learning opportunities.

Electives

In addition to the core courses and Spanish requirement, majors choose another six elective courses. In selecting courses, students are encouraged to concentrate in one of four areas: Historical Processes and Interpretations of the Americas, Contemporary Transformations in the Americas, Cultural Studies of the Americas, and Latina/o Studies. Students should choose their six elective courses in consultation with an advisor.

Elective courses approved for the major include any of the remaining courses offered by the Latin American and Latino Studies Program plus the following courses in other fields.

Other courses that are not listed may also count toward the major.

Students may petition the Director for the inclusion of other courses that focus on the Latin American or Latino experience.
• LST 200 Founding Myths and Cultural Conquest in Latin America (or)
• LST 201 Social Diversity in Latin America (or)
• LST 203 Cultural Studies Across the Americas (and)
• LST 202 Multiculturalism in the United States: The Construction of Latino Communities (required)

Areas of Concentration (4 courses / 16 credit hours):

Four elective courses, to be chosen in consultation with a program advisor. Minors are encouraged to take LST 390 Capstone Seminar. Minors are suggested to focus in one of the four Areas of Concentration:

- Historical Processes and Interpretations of the Americas
- Contemporary Transformations in the Americas
- Cultural Studies of the Americas
- Latina/o Studies

STUDY ABROAD EXPERIENCE

Students are strongly encouraged to participate in DePaul’s quarter abroad program in Merida, Mexico or one of the university’s other short-term study abroad programs in Latin America.

INTERNSHIP EXPERIENCE

Students are strongly encouraged to include an internship as part of their academic experience. Internships may be arranged with either a Latino community organization, a US-based organization that focuses on Latin America, or, as part of a study abroad experience, with a public service organization in a Latin American country.

Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer Studies

The LGBTQ Studies program analyzes sex and sexuality within many different fields of inquiry. A minor in LGBTQ Studies will enable DePaul students to devote significant study to the experiences of people who do not conform to culturally dominant identities of sexuality and gender: lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer. Such an endeavor is profoundly interdisciplinary by nature and draws on university resources and faculty expertise in a wide array of disciplines. Students in this minor will have the opportunity to analyze the experiences of LGBTQ people on their own terms, as well as through critical perspectives on sexuality and gender as complex social, cultural, biological, and historical phenomena.

Because LGBTQ Studies draws on expertise in a wide array of disciplines, faculty in many different departments from across the university teach in the program.

Minor Requirements

The minor in LGBTQ Studies is a 24-quarter-hour program that requires an introductory course plus five elective courses distributed among three areas of concentration.

I. LGQ 150. Introduction to LGBTQ Studies

This required four-credit course will focus on defining the emerging field while giving students some perspective on the history and diversity of LGBTQ communities. Topics addressed will include: shifting definitions of sexuality and gender; the recent emergence of LGBTQ Studies as a discipline; the historical roots of LGBTQ communities in the United States; the development of queer theory as a critique of sexuality and gender; select LGBTQ issues in contemporary culture. This course will also help prepare students for study in the various fields covered by the elective courses and thus would ideally be taken beforehand (though this is not a strict requirement).

II. Areas of Concentration

LGBTQ Studies minors must take at least one elective course in each of the following three areas of concentration. This list is not exhaustive as new courses are regularly created and approved. Students should contact the Program Director for a current list of approved electives. Students may also petition the Director for approval of a course not listed. Courses followed by the designation include special topics and other courses that can significantly change focus with each offering; students should check the current list of approved electives for confirmation.

1. Queer Theory and the Intersections of Identity. This concentration poses fundamental questions about constructions of personal and social identity in relation to sexuality and gender. In these courses, students probe the discourse of sexual identity from several disciplinary perspectives, including psychology, psychoanalysis, geography, and womens studies. Approved courses include: PSY 213 Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgendered Psychology; PSY 215 Human Sexuality; REL 254 The Body and Human Relationships; WMS 389/488 Queer Theory; WMS 394 Transnational Sexualities.

2. Queer Representations. This concentration includes courses that study the many ways in which same-sex desire has been represented in art and literature present and past. Approved courses include: ENG 272/379 Lesbian and Gay Literature; ENG 371 Queer African-American Literature; ENG 389 The Queer Novel; LGQ 397 Sappho to Shakespeare: Queer Desire in Ancient and Early Modern Literature; LST 310 Queer Latinidad; WMS 255 Deconstructing the Diva; WMS 290 Queer Cinema.

3. History, Politics, and Power. This concentration studies LGBTQ history in a variety of periods and settings, as well as current issues in LGBTQ politics. Approved courses include: AMS/HST 275 and AMS/HST 276 History of Sexuality in America; LGQ 332/WMS 332/432/PSYC 332 Creating Change: Contemporary Lesbian and Gay Politics; LGQ 338/WMS 338 Sexual Justice: Lesbians, Gays and the Law; LGQ 397 Gay Men's Health Matters; NSG 335 Lesbian Health Matters; REL 256 Wellness, Disease, and AIDS in Cross-Cultural Perspective; WMS 394 Queer Pioneers: Culture, Gender, and Political Activism.

Military Science

The Military Science Department offers students, as an adjunct to their major field of study, the opportunity to achieve commissions as Army officers in either the active Army, the U.S. Army Reserve, or National Guard through the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) program. The program develops leadership, managerial potential, and the qualities of self-discipline, confidence, personal integrity, and individual responsibility. Emphasis is on learning through doing. The department's program prepares the student for a period of service as a commissioned officer in the United States Army, a service that can ultimately lead either to a military career or to a more responsible place in the civilian world. The curriculum is divided into two parts: Basic and Advanced. The Basic course normally encompasses the freshman and sophomore academic years. Basic-course students are under no obligation to enter into a contractual agreement with the U.S. Government. The advanced course encompasses juniors and seniors who have successfully completed the on-campus basic course. Students who have attended a special six-week summer training program, students who have previous Junior ROTC training, and qualified veterans may also be admitted into the advanced course. Upon enrollment in the Advanced Course, the student enters into a contractual agreement with the United States Government, whereby the student agrees to accept a commission in the United States Army for a period of active or reserve duty after his graduation. The government, in return, provides a monthly stipend of $300-500 for up to ten months of the school year.

Students may compete for ROTC two-year and three-year scholarships during their freshman or sophomore year. Scholarships can pay full tuition and fees, annual book allowance of $1,200, and $300-500 monthly during the remainder of the winners undergraduate education. A Leaders Training Course summer program is available to selected students who have been unable to complete the normal two-year progression of Military Science. Students attend a six-week program at Fort Knox, Kentucky. This program, in conjunction with the normal two-year advanced program of Military Science, is designed to prepare the student for a period of service as a commissioned officer in the United States Army. The program provides an introduction to a variety of military-related topics. It involves instruction in map reading, marksmanship, first aid, tactics, fundamentals of leadership, and basic military skills.

Program Degree Requirements

In order to be commissioned an officer in the United States Army, students are required to complete the following: 111, 112 and 113 (freshman year); 211, 212 and 213 (sophomore year); 321, 322 and 323 (junior year); and 341, 342 and 343 (senior year). Advance-course students can expect to participate in weekly physical fitness training and periodic weekend training exercises each quarter. Students must successfully complete a six-week advanced camp prior to being commissioned.

Credits earned through the Military Science Department are counted toward degree requirements at DePaul. Classroom instruction is offered at the University of Illinois at Chicago, Illinois Institute of Technology or Loyola University. Students contact the professor to arrange for the most convenient location to attend class. Further information may be obtained from the Department of Military Science at University of Illinois at Chicago, (312) 413-2357.

Modern Languages

The programs in Modern Languages seek to develop a student ability to speak, understand, read, and write another language and to foster an appreciation of its literature and civilization. The department regularly offers courses in American Sign Language, Arabic, Chinese, French, German, Ancient Greek, Italian, Japanese, Latin, Russian, and Spanish.

Major programs are available in Arabic Studies, Chinese Studies, French, German, Italian, Japanese Studies, and Spanish; these consist of advanced courses at the 200- and 300-levels. The major does not include elementary and intermediate courses (100-level courses), which students must complete if their prior linguistic training is insufficient to take advanced courses. Minor programs are available for all languages.

All students are strongly encouraged to participate in DePauls Study Abroad Programs in China, France, Germany, Greece, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Spain, Poland, and other locations. Consult the Study Abroad Office for current offerings.

Major Programs
Minor Programs

Arabic Studies: 52 quarter hour credits of coursework, distributed as follows:
1) 24 to 32 credits of advanced (200 and 300 level) coursework in Arabic language, selected to develop appropriate levels of proficiency; and 2) 20 to 28 credits of coursework in Arabic studies, chosen from the list of approved courses and from at least three different departments, such as History, History of Art and Architecture, Religious Studies, Geography, International Studies, Political Science, etc. Consult the current approved Arabic Studies course list available from the Department of Modern Languages or the website. Students who begin their study of Arabic at DePaul with ARB 202 or higher may substitute a 300-level Arabic elective course for any of the required 200-level courses.

Chinese Studies: 52 quarter hour credits of coursework, distributed as follows: 1) 24 to 32 credits of advanced (200 and 300 level) coursework in Chinese language, selected to develop appropriate levels of proficiency; and 2) 20 to 28 credits of coursework in Chinese studies, chosen from the list of approved courses and from at least three different departments, such as History, History of Art and Architecture, Religious Studies, Geography, International Studies, Political Science, etc. Consult the current approved Chinese Studies course list available from the Department of Modern Languages or the website. Students who begin their study of Chinese at DePaul with CHN 202 or higher may substitute a 300-level Chinese elective course for any of the required 200-level courses.

French: 201 Advanced Communication I; 202 Advanced Communication II; 203 or 204 Advanced Communication III or IV; 341 Introduction to French Literature I; 342 Introduction to French Literature II; 350 French Phonetics and Phonology; and six more 300-level courses. Students who begin their study of French at DePaul with FCH 202 or higher may substitute a 300-level French elective course for any of the required 200-level courses.

German: 201 Advanced Communication I; 202 Advanced Communication II; 203 Advanced Communication III; and eight 300-level courses. Students who begin their study of German at DePaul with GER 202 or higher may substitute a 300-level German elective course for any of the required 200-level courses.

Italian: 201 Advanced Communication I; 202 Advanced Communication II; 203 Advanced Communication III; and eight 300-level courses. Students who begin their study of Italian at DePaul with ITA 202 or higher may substitute a 300-level Italian elective course for any of the required 200-level courses.

Japanese Studies: 48 quarter hour credits of coursework, distributed as follows: 1) 24 to 32 credits of advanced (200 and 300 level) coursework in Japanese language, selected to develop appropriate levels of proficiency; 2) 16 to 24 credits focusing on Japan in at least two other departments or programs such as History, History of Art and Architecture, Religious Studies, Geography, International Studies, Political Science, etc. Consult the current approved Japanese Studies course list available from the Department of Modern Languages or the website. Students who begin their study of Japanese at DePaul with JPN 202 or higher may substitute a 300-level Japanese elective course for any of the required 200-level courses.

Spanish: 201 Advanced Grammar and Communication; 202 Advanced Composition and Communication; 203 or 204 Advanced Conversation; 352 Spanish Phonetics and Phonology; 220 Introduction to Literary Analysis in Spanish; plus three more literature courses, one from three of the following areas: 1) Spanish Literature from Middle Ages through Golden Age, 2) Spanish Literature from Enlightenment to present, 3) Latin American Literature from origins through Romanticism, 4) Latin American Literature from Modernism through present; and finally four other 200- or 300-level elective courses (at least two of these electives must be from the 300 level). Students whose level of proficiency allows them to begin studying Spanish at DePaul in SPN 202 or higher may substitute 300-level language courses for three 200-level language courses. Heritage speakers of Spanish should take SPN 205 Grammar/Composition for the Heritage Speaker I, SPN 206 Grammar/Composition for the Heritage Speaker II, and SPN 207 Advanced Conversation for the Heritage Speaker instead of SPN, 201, 202, 203/204.

Teaching Major: The School of Education offers a concentration of study which combines the requirements for a major in Modern Languages with certification for teaching modern languages at the kindergarten through secondary levels. A student electing such a program should consult an advisor in the School of Education as soon as possible after entering DePaul.

Minor Programs

The Department of Modern Languages offers three types of minors, depending on the language. The Language Minor includes language courses at the 200 and 300 level. The Studies Minor includes courses in language and in allied fields. The Custom Minor is for those languages not offering Language or Studies Minors. Click below for details by language.
Language Minors

Language Minor in Arabic: An individualized program can be developed for a minor after consultation with an advisor from the Modern Languages faculty. The language minor in Arabic consists of any five courses in Arabic at the 200 and/or 300 levels.

Language Minor in Chinese: An individualized program can be developed for a minor after consultation with an advisor from the Modern Languages faculty. The language minor in Chinese language consists of any five courses in Chinese at the 200 and/or 300 levels.

Language Minor in French, German, or Italian: An individualized program can be developed for a minor in French, German, or Italian after consultation with an advisor from the Modern Languages faculty. The minor will consist of a total of 5 courses in the language chosen. Courses will be taken beginning at the 200/300-level. For the language minor, a student may choose a mix of 200- and 300-level courses. However, no more than three 200-level courses will count towards the language minor, which must be completed by at least two 300-level courses. On the other hand, a student may elect to take as many as five 300-level courses towards the language minor.

Language Minor in Japanese: An individualized program can be developed for a minor after consultation with an advisor from the Modern Languages faculty. The language minor in Japanese language consists of any five courses in Japanese at the 200 and/or 300 levels.

Language Minor in Russian: An individualized program can be developed for a minor after consultation with an advisor from the Modern Languages faculty. The language minor in Russian language consists of any five courses in Russian at the 200 and/or 300 levels.

Language Minor in Spanish: An individualized program can be developed for a minor after consultation with an advisor from the Modern Languages faculty. The language minor in Spanish language consists of any five courses in Spanish at the 200 and/or 300 levels.

French Translation: 24 quarter-hour credits of coursework, or 6 courses, distributed as follows: 1) 12 credits of advanced (200-level) coursework in French language, selected to develop appropriate levels of proficiency in the language and to provide an introduction to translation; and 2) 12 credits of advanced (300-level) coursework in translation classes. Depending on their level of prior expertise with French, students may need to complete courses at the Basic and Intermediate levels before enrolling in 200 or 300-level language courses.

Commercial Language Minor in French or Spanish: French/Spanish 320: Advanced Commercial French/Spanish plus four more courses at the 200 and/or 300 level in the selected language. For the Commercial Language Minor in French, at least one of those four courses must be at the 300 level. For the Commercial Language Minor in Spanish, the department recommends that those four courses include Spanish 252: Introduction to Commercial Spanish. Students successfully completing the commercial language minor will be encouraged to take the business language certification exams given by the French and Spanish governments through their respective chambers of commerce.

Studies Minors

Arabic Studies Minor: One year of college-level Arabic language (101-102-103 or equivalent) and five additional courses focusing on the Arab world chosen from at least two different disciplines in consultation with an advisor from an approved course list (available from the Department of Modern Languages). Currently there are offerings in Modern Languages (MOL 340, MOL 341, MOL 342), Communication, Geography, History, Islamic World Studies, Women and Gender Studies, International Studies, Political Science, Religious Studies, etc.

Chinese Studies Minor: One year of college-level Chinese language (101-102-103 or equivalent) and five additional courses focusing on China chosen from at least two different disciplines in consultation with an advisor from an approved course list (available from the Department of Modern Languages or the website). Currently there are offerings in Communication, Geography, History, History of Art and Architecture, International Studies, Political Science, Religious Studies, etc.

Classical Studies Minor: One year of college-level Ancient Greek or Latin (101-102-103 or the equivalent) and five additional courses focusing on ancient Greece or Rome, chosen from at least two different disciplines in consultation with an advisor from the list of approved courses for the Classical Studies minor (available from the Department of Modern Languages or the website). Currently the list includes courses from History, History of Art and Architecture, Modern Languages (Classical literature in translation), Philosophy, Political Science, and Religious Studies. For any of these five courses students are strongly encouraged to substitute any intermediate level course in Ancient Greek or Latin.

Japanese Studies Minor: One year of college-level Japanese language study (101-102-103 or equivalent) and five additional courses chosen from at least two different disciplines in consultation with an advisor from an approved course list (available from the Department of Modern Languages and the website). Currently there are offerings in Communication, Geography, History, History of Art and Architecture, International Studies, Political Science, Religious Studies, etc.

Russian Studies Minor: One year of college-level Russian language study (RUS 101-102-103 at DePaul or equivalent) and five additional courses chosen from at least two different disciplines in consultation with an advisor from an approved course list (available from the Department of Modern Languages and the website). Currently there are offerings in Communication, Geography, History, History of Art and Architecture, International Studies, Political Science, Religious Studies, etc.

Custom Minor

For all other languages offered at DePaul, students may declare a custom minor consisting of 24 credits of coursework beyond the first-year level. Two options are available for this minor: 1) the “Language Option,” consisting of 24 credits of study in one language beyond the first-year level; and 2) the “Studies Option,” consisting of 16 credits of study in one language beyond the first-year level and 8 credits of related courses from other departments such as Communication, Geography, History, History of Art and Architecture, International Studies, Philosophy, Political Science, Religious Studies, etc. The custom minor is not applicable to languages where a minor program already exists. All custom minor programs require consultation with a faculty advisor in Modern Languages and approval by the department chair.

Placement Guide

All students with prior knowledge or study of a language must take a DePaul language placement test (available online from the Office of Student Records) before taking a language course at DePaul.

As a general guideline, placement test results often correlate to the following equivalencies:

- No prior study or knowledge: begin with 101.
- One year of high school study: begin with 102 or 103.
- Two years of high school study: begin with 104.
- Two to three years of high school study: begin with 105 or 106.

Four years of high school study or a more extensive background: begin with 200- and 300-level courses chosen in consultation with a departmental advisor. Placement tests or consultation with the advisor can result in adjustment of these recommendations in order to satisfy best the needs of the individual student.

Sequence

Students should study another language in the appropriate sequence—elementary, intermediate, or advanced—as determined in consultation with an advisor. Note that proficiency in a modern language is a graduation requirement for students earning a bachelor of arts degree.

The proper sequence at the elementary level is 101-102-103.

The proper sequence at the intermediate level is 104-105-106, 110-111-112, 114-115-116, 124-125-126, etc. Completion of the intermediate level (or equivalent) is a prerequisite for all 200- and 300-level courses, except those offered in English (MOL courses).

All Independent Study courses require prior arrangement with the course instructor and approval by the department chair.

Peace, Justice, and Conflict

Peace, Justice, and Conflict

The Peace, Justice, & Conflict Studies Program offers students a B.A. major curriculum that helps them reflect on the origins and causes of conflict, violence, and social injustice as well as the wide spectrum of conflict intervention, from armed conflict, through governmental and organizational peacebuilding, to local and interpersonal conflict resolution. The Program also introduces students to strategies for resolving interpersonal, communal and international conflicts peacefully, as well as tactics that promote the common good in a way that addresses the structural origins of violence. The Peace, Justice, and Conflict Studies Program addresses the need for a critical examination of the origins and root causes of violence and conflict. The Program includes frank debate about the efficacy of nonviolent in comparison with violent approaches to social change. The inclusion of conflict theory and intervention as part of this program is a distinctive aspect of this program; the arena of conflict resolution offers many potential career options. The Program emphasizes hands-on, experiential components in the introductory course, the final seminar/internship and the workshops which emphasize skill training.

Students and faculty in Peace, Justice, & Conflict Studies question what constitutes a just society and world, what peace and peacebuilding can accomplish in a world full of conflict, and how attitudes toward social justice, violence, and peace reflect and reveal American and other cultures’ values, beliefs, prejudices, assumptions, and perceptions.

Students are expected to gain competency in dealing with situations of conflict and injustice by mastering the theoretical and intellectual frameworks related to peacebuilding, human rights advocacy, and justice development, by learning to interpret and analyze real life situations in their complexity, by understanding how to build strategies for negotiation, consensus-building, advocacy, partnership development, and other intervention tools, and by understanding various research methodologies and the use of media and creative outlets.

Students majoring in many social science, humanities, and other interdisciplinary programs will find it beneficial to double major or minor in Peace, Justice, & Conflict Studies. Students who pursue the major are well prepared for graduate work in the humanities or social sciences, and specifically in peace, justice, or conflict studies, as well as for professional training in law, public service, or business.

Notes:

- PAX majors will take one additional approved LSP course from any Domain.
- * Students must earn a C- or better in this course.

Note: Courses offered in the student's primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:

Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.
Departmental Degree Requirements

B.A. in Peace, Justice, and Conflict Studies

To attain a Bachelor of Arts in Peace, Justice, and Conflict Studies, students will be required to complete successfully the following 192 credit hour program, with a minimum of 52 required credit hours in the Peace, Justice, and Conflict Studies program:

<table>

Core Requirements

The three-course sequence PAX 210-212-214 forms the foundation of the program and should be completed in the first or second year of study. They do not need to be done in sequence. PAX 200 should be completed by the end of the second year. An internship, PAX 390 or 392, should be completed prior to taking PAX 300 & 350. If possible, students should take the internship prior to senior year. Seniors should plan to take the senior seminar, PAX 300, and the capstone, PAX 350. Two PAX workshops (2 credit hours each) can be completed at any time, ideally prior to senior year.

PAX Core Courses

- PAX 200: Perspectives on Peace, Justice and Conflict Studies (4 credit hours)
- PAX 250: Workshops on skills and techniques (2 @ 2 cr.hr.) (4 credit hours)
- PAX 210: From International Conflict to Resolution and Peace (4 credit hours)
- PAX 212: Social Justice and Social Change (4 credit hours)
- PAX 214: Conflict: Intervention, Negotiation, and Advocacy (4 credit hours)
- PAX 300: Senior Seminar (4 credit hours)
- PAX 350: Capstone- Peace, Justice, Conflict Studies (4 credit hours)
- PAX 390 or 392: Internship (4 credit hours)

Total (32 credit hours)

Concentrations

Students will select five (5) electives for their program concentration from the list approved by the Program for majors. These five electives will be organized as a concentration. The purpose of the concentration is to provide students with a depth of knowledge in an area that is meaningful to them. Some of the more common themes within this interdisciplinary field are the level of violence studied (e.g., global, local, interpersonal), or topical areas (e.g., war & diplomacy; human rights; justice advocacy and community service; global justice). Students will choose their concentration and its title in consultation with the major plan advisor assigned to them by the Program. After consultation, the advisor will forward a list of five concentration courses and a concentration title to the advising office in the College.

Course Listing by Category

Electives and Distribution Requirements

Students will select five electives from the list approved by the Program which meet the following distribution requirements:

- Two electives of the 5 required for the concentration need to be at the 300-level.
- Two additional PAX 250 workshops may count as one elective (for 4 credit hours), as can any PAX course that is not part of the PAX Core.
- Within their five electives, students must either:
  - take at least 1 course from three different departments or interdisciplinary program or
  - count no more than 3 courses from any one department or interdisciplinary program.
- For students doing a single major, that is, in Peace, Justice and Conflict Studies, it is recommended that they use an elective slot to take an appropriate methodology course in consultation with their major plan advisor.
Senior Seminar
Students will do a senior seminar PAX 300 either in their junior or senior year. Each seminar will deal with one area of theory within Peace, Justice, & Conflict Studies, for example, Human Rights Theory, Theories of Peacebuilding; Theories of Social & Comparative Justice.

Students are also required to do the capstone course in Peace, Justice, & Conflict Studies, PAX 350, so that they can bring together theory and practices learned throughout the course of the major.

Special Programs

Double Major

For the Peace, Justice & Conflict Studies double major, students must complete the major requirements. Double majors may often double count courses for both majors, as well as with the Liberal Studies Program. Double majors in History, Political Science, Communication, Psychology, Philosophy, International Studies, Sociology, Public Policy, Religious Studies and Womens and Gender Studies are the most common. The PAX double major is valuable experience and excellent preparation for graduate or professional school or for immediate employment in not-for-profit organizations, governmental agencies, and the like.

Minor in Peace, Justice, & Conflict Studies:

The minor in Peace, Justice, and Conflict is a 28 quarter hour program structured as follows:

1. PAX 200 Perspectives on Peace, Justice, and Conflict: A required, four-credit course--this is a Junior Year Experiential Learning Course in the Liberal Studies Program.

2. PAX Core Courses: Students must take two of the following core courses: PAX 210, 212, 214, 218, or 220.

3. PAX 250 Topics on Peace, Justice, and Conflict: Students will take two 2-credit-hour workshops that will focus on training in various skills related to nonviolent approaches to conflict resolution and social change.

4. Elective Courses: These must total 8 credit hours, with a minimum of one course at the 300-level. Electives can be taken from any on the course lists, plus additional PAX 250 workshops (2 for 4 credit hours) or, PAX 300-level courses.

5. One of the following: PAX 390 Internship: (Independent), PAX 392 Internship [Cross-listed with CSS] or a second Junior Year Community-based Service Learning course from the PAX list. The internship is strongly suggested. It includes 100 hours of work with an organization that partners with the Steans Center for Community-Based Service Learning, or an organization that has a structured internship or an organized service-abroad program.

6. Distribution: Of the 28 credit hours for the minor, 8 credit hours (2 courses) need to be at the 300-level (including PAX courses).

7. Courses cross-listed with any listed in the "Course Listing by Category" are accepted as PAX electives. Check the PAX Director for topics courses approved as PAX electives each quarter.

Philosophy
Philosophy

The Department of Philosophy serves the needs of the student who seeks an understanding of philosophical issues for personal enrichment, the student who desires a more fundamental appreciation of philosophy in support of law, medicine, business, and various academic disciplines, and the student who wishes to continue the study of philosophy at the graduate level.

Through its courses and programs, the department acquaints students with various philosophical systems and with basic problems posed by diverse thinkers. Courses have been designed to highlight both the humanistic and technical features of philosophy.

The department also recognizes the important need for skills and training. Its courses in logic and analysis have been designed to help students become more perceptive in their experiences and more critical in their thinking.

Further, the department is aware that in our age of rapid change, society often tends to neglect the meaning and worth of the person. Courses are therefore offered which investigate and emphasize the dignity of the person; and by helping one understand the nature and grounds of ethical judgments, to promote an appreciation and ordering of human values.

The department has recently completed a thorough revamping of its entire undergraduate program. Our purpose has been (1) to ensure that our Liberal Studies courses remain responsive to the needs of the student who does not plan to specialize in philosophy; (2) to expand and enrich our offerings for philosophy majors.

The department is particularly proud of its Philosophy Circle, an undergraduate philosophy club which provides a forum for the exchange of ideas between faculty and students.

Note: * Students must earn a C- or better in this course.

Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student's primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

Departmental Degree Requirements

STANDARD CONCENTRATION
Philosophy: 56 quarter hours (14 courses) in philosophy (or their equivalent) distributed as follows:

Basic Prerequisite:
PHL 100 Philosophy and Its Issues.

Cognitive Skills:
Choose one course from:
- PHL 280 Critical Thinking
- PHL 281 Basic Logic
- PHL 282 Symbolic Logic I
- PHL 283 Symbolic Logic II.

History Sequence:
Three courses
- PHL 293 Ancient Philosophy
- PHL 294 Medieval Philosophy
- or PHL 295 Early Modern Philosophy
- PHL 296 Kant and the 19th Century
- or PHL 297 20th Century Philosophy.

Systematic Themes:
Choose two courses from:
- PHL 314 Survey of Ethics
- PHL 315 Survey of Political Thought
- PHL 320 Metaphysics
- PHL 321 Epistemology
- PHL 341 Aesthetics

300 Level Courses:
Four 300 level Philosophy courses.

Electives:
Two courses from any of the Philosophy Department’s 200 or 300 level course offerings.

Capstone Seminar:
Philosophy majors must take PHL 391 Senior Capstone Seminar.

The student must elect 56 quarter hours of additional coursework, at least 24 quarter hours of which must be taken outside Philosophy. Students should regularly discuss their choice of electives with their advisors.

The regular program of courses is supplemented by philosophical symposia and mini-courses featuring prominent philosophers and by departmental colloquia. Each student is expected to consult with his or her departmental advisor on course selection. With departmental permission, a senior may take one course selected from the graduate offerings in philosophy. He or she may take this course on a pass/fail basis. Certain courses in other departments are acceptable equivalents for philosophy credit. Seniors who have a superior record in philosophy may petition to do a Senior Thesis. (Please note that PHL 100 Philosophy and Its Issues is the prerequisite for all 300-level philosophy courses; it is also the prerequisite for all 200 level cognitive skills courses as well as the 200 level history sequence.)
Special Programs

PHILOSOPHY MINOR

The minor program is designed to complement the majors of other departments. It is designed also for those who, while not wishing to specialize in philosophy, nonetheless seek to pursue enduring questions, appraise contemporary values, and critically discuss topics of general human concern. (If you wish to use this program as an academic minor, check with your Department for permission and with the Philosophy Department for sample programs.)

The 24 quarter hours which are required for a minor in philosophy are to be distributed as follows: Three history sequence courses, PHL 293 Ancient Philosophy, and PHL 294 Medieval Philosophy or PHL 295 Early Modern Philosophy, and PHL 296 Kant and the 19th Century or PHL 297 20th Century Philosophy. One PHL 200 level value studies or cognitive skills course. Two PHL 300 level courses.

With permission a student may take PHL 391 Senior Capstone Seminar for Philosophy Majors as part of his or her minor.

Transfer credit may be recognized. (*Please note that PHL 100 Philosophy and Its Issues is the prerequisite for all 300-level philosophy courses; it is also the prerequisite for all 200 level cognitive skills courses as well as the 200 level history sequence.)

Political Science

Political Science is the study of the organization and behavior of people, groups, and institutions which make up our government and the larger political system. The program is designed to introduce students to questions, perspectives, and arguments about the political forces that shape their lives. As such, the program has value for Liberal Studies students as well as for those who may choose the discipline as a major field of study. Students find the substance and the methods of the discipline useful in the legal, business, civic, communications, governmental, and academic professions, as well as any endeavors that draw them into public service.

taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student's primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

Special Programs

TEACH PROGRAM
This program provides students the opportunity to complete in five years an undergraduate Political Science major and a Masters of Education degree with State of Illinois secondary teaching certification in Social Science. As a combined degree program of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education, the program is collaboratively developed, governed, and taught by faculty from both units.

Students may apply to the Program during the spring of their junior year. They must complete the Junior Year Experiential Course TCH 320, Exploring Teaching in an Urban High School, and meet other application criteria prior to applying; these include completion of at least 16 quarter credit hours at DePaul and a 3.0 GPA. During their senior year, students are required to complete a Program capstone course and three 400-level courses that count toward both their undergraduate and graduate degrees. The Masters year comprises teacher-preparation coursework, with student teaching during Spring quarter. Upon graduation and the fulfilling of State of Illinois Certification requirements (which may require some additional course work in the students major and related fields), students are eligible to be certified to teach Social Studies at the 6th-12th grade levels.

A full description of the Program can be found on the College of Education website in the graduate course catalog. Students interested in the Program should consult with the designated TEACH Program advisor in their home department early in their undergraduate career.

Public Policy Studies
Public Policy Studies

Public Policy Studies is a discipline that explores the role and impact of decision-making by governments. The discipline includes knowledge of both process and substance of a particular policy area. Thus, a student in public policy must have both generalist and specialist skills to apply to a particular public problem. In terms of political process, the study of public policy examines questions of how public policy is formulated, implemented, and evaluated over time. It also explores notions of agenda-setting and framing of issues that lead to a problem gaining the attention of the government. Public policy specialists and analysts are hired by all levels of government. During the past several years in addition to the government sector, the nonprofit and private sectors have sought public policy analysts for employment. Therefore, the curriculum prepares students for being public policy specialists in both the private and nonprofit sectors. The curriculum also is tailored to prepare students who would like to continue their education in graduate programs or law schools. The faculty members of the department work closely with students to place them in internships, and when possible, employment positions.

The Public Policy Studies Department (PPS) offers an undergraduate degree (BA) that allows majors the option to pursue concentrated work in the areas of Environmental or Urban Studies. Students take a common core of courses dealing with public policy theories, processes, methods of public policy analysis, and important environmental and urban policy issues. In addition, a data analysis course is required that the student selects from a list of approved courses.

Beyond the core curriculum, students choose either the Environmental Studies or Urban Studies track, selecting from a group of courses within these specializations. A capstone course reconvenes the students at the end of their curriculum to study a public policy problem in-depth under the direction of a public policy professor. The capstone changes approximately every three years, to reflect a current issue on the public policy agenda.

A required orientation occurs before classes begin in the Autumn quarter where students are assigned an advisor for individual attention to the students career path. There is an active student organization that has social events and provides input to the Chairperson.

Note: Courses offered in the student's primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student's primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

Program Degree Requirements
All Public Policy Studies majors take the seven courses (plus the data analysis course) constituting the core curriculum. Each student also takes six courses from either the Environmental Studies or Urban Studies track. Students should complete PPS 200 before enrolling in their Environmental Studies or Urban Studies track courses. Each student also enrolls in the capstone course after completing the methods sequence (PPS 205 & PPS 206) and achieving senior status. Students are encouraged to take PPS 200, PPS 201, and PPS 202 in sequence beginning the Autumn quarter of either their sophomore or junior year. Likewise, PPS 205 and PPS 206 should be sequenced with PPS 205 beginning at the same time as PPS 200.

Public Policy: 200 Introduction to Public Policy; 201 Public Policy and Urban Issues; 202 Public Policy and Environmental Issues; 205 Public Policy Research Methods; 206 Quantitative Public Policy Analysis; 300 Applied Environmental and Urban Economics; 301 Public Policy and the Political Process or 302 Implementation of Environmental and Urban Policy; 393 Capstone. There are no substitutions made for core courses.

One course in Data Analysis (MAT 242, PSY 240 or SOC 279), or GEO 241, 242, 243, 244.

Open elective credit (12 courses/48 hours) also is required to meet the minimum graduation requirement of 192 hours.

The Concentrations

ENVIRONMENTAL STUDIES
Students pursuing the Environmental Studies concentration must choose six courses from the following:

- PPS 330 Sustainable Development
- PPS 331 Environmental Justice
- PPS 332 National Parks
- PPS 333 Green Cities
- PPS 329 Wetlands Delineation Policy
- PPS 329/359 Brownfields and Public Policy
- PPS 329/359 Great Lakes Policy and Governance Policy
- PPS 329/359 Superfund: Focus on Land Redevelopment
- PPS 329/359 Transportation Policy and Planning

URBAN STUDIES
Students pursuing the Urban Studies concentration must choose six courses.

Choose three courses from the following:

- PPS 250 Issues in Neighborhood Dev. (SSMW)
- PPS 251 Urban Poverty (JYEL, CBSL)
- PPS 252 Urban Policy in Comp. & Hist. Persp.
- PPS 253 Cinematic City (SSMW)
- PPS 254 Screening Suburbia (SSMW)

Choose three courses from the following:

- PPS 303 Public Policy and Leadership (SSMW)
- PPS 331 Environmental Justice (JYEL, CBSL)
- PPS 350 Critical Issues in Urban Development
- PPS 351 Public Policy and Urban Housing
- PPS 352 Issues in Urban Education Policy
- PPS 329/359 Neighborhoods & Crime

- PPS 329/359 Urban Development & Planning
- PPS 329/359 Transportation Policy & Planning
- PPS 397 Study Abroad: Amsterdam, Brussels & Paris: Global Cities

Study Abroad Experience

PPS 397 Amsterdam-Brussels-Paris
Capstone Experience (Required)

This course is required of all Public Policy Studies majors with senior status who have completed the research methods sequence (PPS 205 & 206). It requires a research experience on a current public policy. The research project is presented to the faculty and Public Policy Studies students. Senior Public Policy Studies majors will earn 4 credits through this Capstone course. No substitutions are made for this course. Pre-requisites: Must be a Public Policy Studies major and qualify as a senior.

Public Policy Studies Minor

A minor in Public Policy Studies allows students from any discipline to learn more about how their major is integrated into public policy making. Public Policy Studies offers a six course minor. Students need to apply to the department and meet with the Chairperson of Public Policy Studies to assist with planning of the selection of courses. All students are required to take PPS 201 or 202, and PPS 206. No substitutions are allowed. Students choose four additional courses from the list of courses approved for PPS which must be at the 300-level and cannot include the capstone course.

Religious Studies

The Department of Religious Studies offers students the opportunity to engage in the academic study of religion. Because our era is characterized by a resurgence of religion in the public sphere, we see that religion has become central to contemporary culture, politics, identity, and conflict in every part of the globe. At the same time, our world is marked by an emerging pluralism, as globalization, migration, and technology bring diverse religious communities in closer proximity, and create new religious communities as well. Drawing on a host of academic disciplines, religious studies challenges students to encounter the traditions of the world in all their rich diversity, and also prepares them to facilitate the important conversations of our day. Further, students may find that the study of religions can help them respond not only to political, social and environmental challenges, but also to existential questions faced by all peoples.

A truly interdisciplinary field, the study of religion at DePaul develops broad cultural literacy and intellectual skills in the critical analysis of history, anthropology, literature, philosophy, sociology, theology, the visual arts, psychology, and gender studies. In this way, a religious studies major or minor is positioned to pursue a wide variety of careers, as well as to become a bridge between the specialist's perspectives on religion and the wider world that is often in need of these perspectives. In addition to academic careers, religious studies majors have worked in the fields of law, social work, regional and international business, governmental and non-governmental service, secondary school teaching, and service in religious communities.

Religious Studies at DePaul expresses the university's distinct identity, which respects engaged pluralistic inquiry in all religious issues and traditions. The department is committed to DePaul's Catholic, Vincentian and urban heritage, mission, and identity, and to its goal of establishing the university as a model of diversity. The department's course offerings reflect the diversity of the city of Chicago and of the students who attend DePaul. In the Department of Religious Studies, students can not only study multiple religious traditions, but also explore a range of topics and questions related to these traditions in various parts of the world. Because of the interdisciplinary character of our department, and of the field in general, students can approach these traditions and questions from multiple methodological and disciplinary perspectives. The study of religion includes not only the traditional areas of sacred texts, myths, rituals, and doctrines, but also the ways in which political, social, and economic forces shape these phenomena for religious communities.

The twenty-five full-time faculty constitute one of the largest and most diverse undergraduate departments of religious studies in the United States. This size and diversity enables us to offer courses in a wide range of geographical regions and historical periods. The research and teaching interests of the faculty include South and East Asia, Africa and the African diaspora, North and Meso-America, the Middle East and Europe, and focus on Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Taoism, Shinto, as well as Native American, African American, and Latino/a religious traditions. The Department of Religious Studies sponsors the Center for Interreligious Engagement; it also has a close working relationship with the Catholic Studies and Islamic World Studies programs. Given the complexity of the subject matter, in their work the members of the department draw upon anthropology, art history, biblical studies, economics, environmental studies, ethics, gender studies, history, linguistics, literature, political science, philosophy, psychology, sociology, and theology. In addition to excellence in teaching, the faculty also maintain high standards for research, and are actively engaged in presenting at major academic conferences and publishing their work in high-ranking professional journals.

Beyond work with texts, students may also study religion through the media of film and video, music, the visual and dramatic arts, and the internet. The department emphasizes comprehensive learning in writing, synthetic and analytic thinking, and oral communication skills. Students can go beyond their course work with further learning opportunities, such as the senior thesis, independent study, study abroad and internships, and service learning, both locally and internationally.

The department offers five concentrations:

- Standard: This concentration exposes students to a variety of religious traditions, elements, and issues. Additional work within the concentration allows the student to continue exploring a broad range of topics or to concentrate in one area.
- Religion and Culture: This concentration explores the relationship between religions and cultures. Specialization in a particular area (Asia, the Americas, Europe, the Middle East, or Africa and the African Diaspora) is complemented by work in a variety of cross-cultural issues, such as religious expressions in literature, arts, narratives, texts, rituals, spiritualities, and doctrines.
- Religion, Ethics and Social Justice: This concentration examines the idea of social justice and other ethical concerns in various religious traditions, in both theoretical and practical expressions.
- Jewish Studies: This concentration offers students the opportunity to examine varieties of Biblical, Rabbinic, Modern, and Contemporary Judaism.
- Womens and Gender Studies in Religion: This concentration offers students the opportunity to explore contemporary scholarship regarding religions and issues of sexuality and gender.

The department offers five minors:

- Standard: This minor exposes students to a variety of religious traditions, elements, and issues while allowing for a focus that complements the students major.
- Cultural Studies in Religion: This minor explores the relationship between religions and cultures, with a focus on a particular cultural area.
- Religion, Ethics, and Social Justice: This minor examines the idea of social justice and other ethical concerns in various religious traditions.
- Women, Religion, and Spirituality: This minor studies religion with a special focus on issues, concerns, and perspectives of women and gender, including analysis of feminist scholarship.
- Specialized Minor: This minor allows students, in consultation with a departmental advisor, to propose a specialized concentration of six courses that complement the students major or career interests.

The Department encourages students in all major concentrations and minors to engage various questions related to the study of religion, such as (but not limited to):

- Standard: This concentration exposes students to a variety of religious traditions, elements, and issues while allowing for a focus that complements the students major.
- Cultural Studies in Religion: This minor explores the relationship between religions and cultures, with a focus on a particular cultural area.
- Religion, Ethics, and Social Justice: This minor examines the idea of social justice and other ethical concerns in various religious traditions.
- Womens and Gender Studies in Religion: This concentration offers students the opportunity to explore contemporary scholarship regarding religions and issues of sexuality and gender.

The department offers five minors:

- Standard: This minor exposes students to a variety of religious traditions, elements, and issues while allowing for a focus that complements the students major.
- Cultural Studies in Religion: This minor explores the relationship between religions and cultures, with a focus on a particular cultural area.
- Religion, Ethics, and Social Justice: This minor examines the idea of social justice and other ethical concerns in various religious traditions.
- Women, Religion, and Spirituality: This minor studies religion with a special focus on issues, concerns, and perspectives of women and gender, including analysis of feminist scholarship.
- Specialized Minor: This minor allows students, in consultation with a departmental advisor, to propose a specialized concentration of six courses that complement the students major or career interests.

The Department encourages students in all major concentrations and minors to engage various questions related to the study of religion, such as (but not limited to):
What is religion? How do religious communities come into being and define themselves? How do religious communities form worldviews, doctrines, and practices, and how does the study of religion help us to understand their change over time? How do sacred texts come into being, and what do they communicate to us? How does religion shape culture, and how does the wider culture define religion? How do sacred texts come into being, and what do they communicate to us? How does religion shape culture, and how does the wider culture define religion? How do religious traditions and texts treat issues of sexuality and gender, race and class? How have religious traditions interacted with each other in the past, and how do they continue to do so today?

More information about the Department of Religious Studies, including career opportunities, graduate schools, and current activities of faculty, students and recent graduates may be found at the department's website, http://las.depaul.edu/rel/.

Sociology

Sociology is the study of groups, societies, social processes, and institutions. To study these, the department provides a program that includes information (what we know), methodology (how we know) and theory (how we explain). The curriculum provides students with a basis for understanding and participation in their own communities and enables them to pursue careers and occupations in professions related to sociological knowledge and training.

Areas of Concentration:

- Standard: This concentration is for students who want a broad and generalized course of study. Students in this concentration may take a broad array of 200 and 300 level courses. This concentration is excellent preparation for graduate work in sociology and other disciplines, as well as careers in many different areas.

- Sociology of Culture: This concentration focuses on popular culture, the media, technology, and the arts, as well as cultural diversity in post-industrial society. Students in this concentration will take a critical look at how the culture of everyday life is linked to the economy, state, family, education, and politics. Students interested in pursuing careers in communications, advertising, cultural criticism, market research and journalism should consider this concentration. We strongly suggest that students in this concentration take SOC 280: Mass Media and Culture.
• Health & Human Services: This concentration addresses policies and issues of health and public welfare in the U.S. and abroad. Students develop an understanding of the social factors that create disparities in health and illness, health care delivery systems, and other social resources. Students interested in careers in health care, health policy, public health, nursing, and social work should consider this concentration. We strongly suggest that students in this concentration take SOC 221: Introduction to the US Health Care System.

• Law, Crime, & Criminology: This concentration spans topics of criminalization, the legal system, and criminal justice systems, paying particular attention to the way these affect marginalized segments of the population and work to maintain interlocking systems of oppression. Students in this concentration will learn about the cultural and structural forces that work to define deviance, inform the construction and interpretation of the law, and delimit the experiences of people affected by the criminal justice system. This concentration prepares students for careers in law, non-profit social justice work, social work, or youth services. We strongly suggest that students in this concentration take SOC 220.

• The Dynamics of Urban Society: This concentration focuses on understanding the history, development, social and political dynamics of urban centers, both in the US and globally. It addresses the current and future environmental, physical and demographic aspects of human settlement as well as social and political aspects. Topics include issues of urban social stratification and poverty; race/ethnicity and lifestyles; immigration; crime and delinquency; community, politics and community activism; urban planning; housing; technology and the environment; media, art and culture; and work and occupations. We strongly suggest that students in this concentration take SOC 245: Urban Sociology or SOC 212: Community and Society.

Internship Opportunities:
An internship course (SOC 398) is offered that can be integrated with the concentration courses. Please contact Dr. Joyce Sween at 773.325.4430.

Sociology Minor:
For students who are majoring in another department, a series of five courses (including SOC 101 or SOC 105) may be organized as a minor field. Students who wish to learn more about the Sociology Minor are invited to talk with the chair and members of the department.

| Understanding the Past (UP) | 2 Courses Required |

Note: Students must earn a C- or better in this course.

Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student's primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.

Departmental Program Requirements

SOCIOLOGY MAJOR

Thirteen Sociology courses and a Capstone course are required to complete the Sociology major.

- A five-course core program listed below is required of all Sociology majors:
  - SOC 101 Introduction to Sociology or SOC 105 Social Problems
  - SOC 279 Introductory Statistics for the Social Sciences*
Eight additional Sociology courses at the 200 or 300 level are required.

- Five of the eight selected courses beyond the core program must be 300-level courses.
- SOC 395 Capstone in Sociology is not included in the 13 courses required for the major.
- In addition, fourteen supporting elective courses are to be selected in consultation with the student's academic advisor.

* The statistics requirement, SOC 279, may also be fulfilled by PSY 240 or MAT 242.

Thirteen open electives (52 credits) also are required to reach the minimum graduation total of 192 hours.

Sociology Minor

For students who are majoring in another department, the Department of Sociology offers a minor composed of five courses. The requirements are as follows:

- SOC 101 Introduction to Sociology or SOC 105 Social Problems
- Four courses from the 200-level and 300-level course offerings.

Courses in theory, research methods, and statistics are recommended but not required.

B.A./M.A. Combined Degree in Sociology

The Sociology Department offers a special option to majors with a potential for graduate work: a five-year program in which the student receives a B.A. after four years and an M.A. at the end of the fifth year. This represents a savings of about a year over the conventional M.A. degree and a reduction in courses taken during the fifth (M.A.) year. It provides a strong background for students wishing to enter professional programs (law, MBA or Ph.D.). The student in this program can begin to take graduate courses during the senior year. Majors should apply for this option no later than the last quarter of their junior year.
Three 300-level courses from:
309 Sociology of Sexuality
330 Themes in Social Thought
382 Qualitative Methods
383 Visual Sociology
384 Ethnographic Documentary Film Production
386 Popular Culture and the Arts
387 Sociology of Celebrity
388 Sociology of Consumption

With approval, the following topics classes may also count as a 300-level concentration course:
390 Special Topics in Culture
394 Community-based Sociology
398 Internship in Culture

Three additional 200 or 300 level electives in Sociology, which may include those courses listed above.

Five of the eight courses beyond the core program must be 300-level courses.

Ill. Health and Human Services

The Health and Human Services concentration consists of the common core plus eight additional courses:

Two 200-level courses from:
200 Social Work and Social Welfare
221 Introduction to the U.S. Health Care System
223 Sociology of Health and Illness
235 Adolescent Health
236 Immigration, Health, and Illness

Three 300-level courses from:
307 Substance Use and Abuse
321 Health & Human Service Organizations
323 The Social Welfare Institution
326 Life Cycle: Middle Age/Aging
351 Health Disparities
353 Sociology of Mental Illness
365 Health and Globalization
370 People, Places, and Food
373 Public Health and High Risk Behavior

With approval, the following topics classes may also count as a 300-level concentration course:
390 Special Topics in Health & Human Services
394 Community-based Sociology
398 Internship in Health & Human Services

Three additional 200 or 300 level electives in Sociology, which may include those courses listed above.

Five of the eight courses beyond the core program must be 300-level courses.
IV. Law, Crime & Criminology

The Law, Crime, and Criminology concentration consists of the common core plus eight additional courses:

Two 200-level courses from:
207 Youth and Society
208 Law and Society
214 Police and the Urban Community
220 Theories of Crime and Delinquency
248 White Racism

Three 300-level courses from:
301 The Juvenile Court System
304 Social Deviance
305 Power, Constructions of Deviance, and Social Control
307 Substance Use & Abuse
310 Critical Perspectives on Criminal Justice
315 Law, Power, and Resistance
316 Street Gangs
317 Gender, Crime, & Justice
322 Treatment and Prevention of Delinquency
373 Public Health and High Risk Behavior

With approval, the following topics classes may also count as a 300-level concentration course:
390 Special Topics in Law, Crime & Criminology
394 Community-based Sociology
398 Internship in Law, Crime & Criminology

Three additional 200 or 300 level electives in Sociology, which may include those courses listed above.

Five of the eight courses beyond the core program must be 300-level courses.

V. Dynamics of Urban Society

The Dynamics of Urban Society concentration consists of the common core plus eight additional courses:

Two 200-level courses from:
212 Community and Society
214 Police and the Urban Community
230 Sex and Gender in the City
231 Race and Ethnicity in the City
232 Global Cities
245 Urban Sociology
271 Population Problems

Three 300-level courses from:

Special Programs

TEACH PROGRAM
This program provides students the opportunity to complete in five years an undergraduate Sociology major and a Masters of Education degree with State of Illinois secondary teaching certification in Social Science. As a combined degree program of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education, the program is collaboratively developed, governed, and taught by faculty from both units.

Students may apply to the Program during the spring of their junior year. They must complete the Junior Year Experiential Course TCH 320, Exploring Teaching in an Urban High School, and meet other application criteria prior to applying; these include completion of at least 16 quarter credit hours at DePaul and a 3.0 GPA. During their senior year, students are required to complete a Program capstone course and three 400-level courses that count toward both their undergraduate and graduate degrees. The Masters year comprises teacher-preparation coursework that culminates with student teaching during Spring quarter. Upon graduation and the fulfilling of State of Illinois Certification requirements (which may require some additional course work in the students major and related fields), students are eligible to be certified to teach Social Studies at the 6th-12th grade levels.

A full description of the Program can be found on the College of Education website in the graduate course catalog. Students interested in the Program should consult with the designated TEACH Program advisor in their home department early in their undergraduate career.

Women's and Gender Studies

Women's and Gender Studies is an interdisciplinary program offering a major and a minor, as well as a 5-year B.A./M.A. Womens and Gender Studies courses examine womens lives, conditions, and contributions within their historical, social, cultural, national and transnational contexts and they explore how gender is constructed and negotiated within and across societies. Women's and mens identities and experiences are examined through the constructs of gender, race, class, age, ability, sexuality, culture, religion, nation, etc. within broader historical, social, and global contexts, such as colonialism, globalization, among others.

Through feminist and gender-based theories and methodologies, the Womens and Gender Studies Program offers critical analyses, reflections, and contributions to knowledge regarding interlocking systems of oppression and privilege, thereby addressing issues of power, resistance and social transformation. In addition, the emphasis on critical theory and analysis allows for work that interrogates feminist discourses as well as those of other disciplines in the arts, humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences.

The interdisciplinary Women's and Gender Studies major and minor combine courses taken in the Women's and Gender Studies Program with approved elective courses offered in other departments and programs around the university. Courses are offered regularly by many departments in the college of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences in the social sciences, the humanities, philosophy, and religion as well as by the College of Communication and the College of Education.

In addition, many students decide to combine a Women's and Gender Studies major with a second major in another discipline. A double major is a rich educational experience and is actually easy to accomplish. To do so, you can double count courses that fulfill both Women's and Gender Studies and Liberal Studies requirements, and you can double count half of the courses that fulfill the requirements of both majors. And we now have a 5 Year B.A./M.A. Program that allows you to get both an undergraduate and graduate degree in five years. Students must apply their junior year for the program.

A major, double major, minor, and/or M.A. in Womens and Gender Studies prepares students for graduate study in many fields (law, social work, sociology, psychology, history, art and art history, communication, Latin American/Latino Studies, African and Black Diaspora Studies, International Studies, among many others) as well as for careers in the public and private sectors, including social services, social justice, public policy, education, media and popular culture, advocacy, creative arts, counseling, and more.

Students who would like to know more about the Womens and Gender Studies Program are invited to speak with the director and the other faculty members of the program (5th Floor of Schmitt Academic Center) and/or visit the Womens and Gender Studies Program website http://las.depaul.edu/wms/.

Quantitative Reasoning and Technological Literacy:
Readiness for LSP 120 is determined by the math placement test taken online after admission. Students may need to take developmental coursework prior to LSP 120. The LSP 120 requirement may be waived by credit already earned for advanced math coursework or by passing a dedicated proficiency exam. Students who complete both LSP 120 and LSP 121 take one less Learning Domain course. Students may not apply the course reduction to any Domain where only one course is required, and if taken within the SI Domain, the reduction cannot be applied to the SI Lab requirement.

Note: Courses offered in the student’s primary major cannot be taken to fulfill LSP Domain requirements. If students double major, LSP Domain courses may double count for both LSP credit and the second major. Students who choose to take an experiential learning course offered by the major may count it either as a general elective or the JYEL requirement.

In meeting learning domain requirements, no more than one course that is outside the students major and is cross-listed with a course within the students major, can be applied to count for LSP domain credit. This policy does not apply to those who are pursuing a double major or earning BFA or BM degrees.
WOMENS AND GENDER STUDIES MAJOR
A thirteen-course major is offered, consisting of a six-course common core, four courses in one concentration area, and three electives. All Women's and Gender Studies majors must complete a declaration of major form online at http://las.depaul.edu/StudentServices/UgradAcademicAdvising/UgradForms/DeclarationOfMajor.asp.

COMMON CORE
Six core courses are required in Women's and Gender Studies. WGS 100 Women's Lives: Race/Class/Gender (Students are encouraged to take this before taking additional coursework in the major); WGS 200 Women Studies in Transnational Contexts; WGS 250 Feminist Frameworks; WGS 300 Feminist Theories; WGS 391 Scope and Methods in Women's and Gender Studies; and WGS 395 Senior Seminar in Women's and Gender Studies.

CONCENTRATIONS
Choose one of the following concentrations, and take four courses approved for the particular concentration. There is also an individualized concentration available. New courses are created each year so this list may be out of date. Check with an advisor if there's a course that you'd like to apply toward the major or minor and it's not reflected on this list.

International Perspectives Concentration
The common core plus four courses from: WGS 303 Women and Violence; WGS 307 Women in the Middle East; WGS 324 Women in Theatre; WGS 334 Growing Up Female in a Global Context; WGS 336 Women and Film; WGS 390 Women Across Cultures; ANT 314 Anthropology of Gender; ENG 359 Contemporary British Women Writers; FCH 319 French Women Writers of the 20th Century; GER 317 Women Writers German Expressionism; HST 212 Medieval and Renaissance Women; HST 239 Women in Western Europe since 1600; HST 258 Women in History; HST 340 Culture and Gender in Japan; PSC 358 Global Gender Issues; REL 272 Muslim Women in Texts; REL 274 Women in African Religion and Culture; SPN 322 Latin American Women Writers

New courses are created each year so this list may be out of date. Check with an advisor if there's a course that you'd like to apply toward the major or minor and it's not reflected on this list.
Individualized Concentration
A common core plus four courses to be chosen by the student from the list of courses approved for the major (listed in the Class Offering Schedule and the Womens and Gender Studies website http://las.depaul.edu/~wms) These courses must be approved, in writing, by a Womens and Gender Studies Program faculty advisor.

THREE ADDITIONAL ELECTIVES toward the Major
Three additional courses are required. These should be chosen by the student from the list of courses approved for the Womens and Gender Studies major (listed in the Class Offering Schedule and the Womens and Gender Studies Newsletter).

5-Year BA/MA Program
The Five Year B.A./M.A. Program offers undergraduate majors the opportunity to complete the Master of Arts degree in just one additional year of classes. In the fourth year of the B.A., students take three graduate courses that count toward both the undergraduate and graduate degrees, including one core course required for the B.A and M.A. (WGS 400, Feminist Theories), one core course required for the M.A. (WGS 465, Globalization, Transnationalism and Gender), and one elective graduate course. In the fifth year and beyond, you are officially matriculated at the graduate level, and then you just have to complete 9 more courses of the 12 required for the M.A.; two of these courses are core courses required for the M.A., WGS 485 (Women, Gender, Agency, and Social Change), and WGS 415 (Contentions in Feminist and Gender theorizing: New Directions).

Applications are accepted during Spring Quarter. Contact your WGS Advisor or Dr. Laila Farah (lfarah@depaul.edu) who is the Graduate Director. For more information about admission requirements and process, check out the website at http://las.depaul.edu/wms/.

Minor
A six-course minor is offered. For the minor, a student must take WGS 100, WGS 200, WGS 250 and three additional courses to be chosen from the list of courses approved for the Womens and Gender Studies major. Check the Womens and Gender Studies Program website for listing of courses, or check with the program for the next quarters listing http://las.depaul.edu/wms/ or 773-325-4086.

Writing, Rhetoric, and Discourse
Courses in WRD offer students opportunities for developing their writing skills for academic contexts and for a full range of dynamic and rewarding careers grounded in written communication. At the undergraduate level, WRD houses the Bachelor of Arts degree in Writing, Rhetoric, & Discourse, the Minor in Professional Writing, DePaul’s First Year Writing
Program, and required writing courses for programs in Commerce and CDM.

The development and expression of ideas in writing constitutes the very foundation of the liberal arts, and more broadly, contemporary democratic culture. In government, education, and all manner of professions, it is through writing that we determine our values, define norms of appropriate behavior, and pursue our goals. Our lives are increasingly mediated by digital technologies that use writing to organize sound and image in interactive spaces like the World Wide Web, and through text messaging, email, and social networking, individual identity and interpersonal relationships are progressively bound up with writing. At the same time, we face growing demands for communicating across national, cultural, and linguistic borders, requiring us to rethink many assumptions we may have about written communication and expression. The Department of Writing, Rhetoric, and Discourse engages various writing practices and genres to prepare students to excel in the range of contexts in which they will go on to write.

The act of writing in general and each student’s writing in particular are of central concern in all WRD courses. Theories of language, rhetoric (how to make effective choices as writers), and discourse (how writing structures human activity) develop students understanding of how the individual act of writing is bound up in broader contexts of institution and culture.

TEACH Program
This program provides students the opportunity to complete in five years an undergraduate WRD major and a Master of Education degree with State of Illinois secondary teaching certification in English/Language Arts. As a combined degree program of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the College of Education, the program is collaboratively developed, governed, and taught by faculty from both units.

Students may apply to the Program during the spring of their junior year. They must complete the Junior Year Experiential Course TCH 320, Exploring Teaching in an Urban High School, and meet other application criteria prior to applying; these include completion of at least 16 quarter credit hours at DePaul and a 3.0 GPA. During their senior year, students are required to complete a Program capstone course and three 400-level courses that count toward both their undergraduate and graduate degrees. The Masters year comprises teacher-preparation coursework that culminates with student teaching during Spring quarter. Upon graduation and the fulfilling of State of Illinois Certification requirements (which may require some additional course work in the students major and related fields), students are eligible to be certified to teach English at the 6th-12th grade levels.

A full description of the Program can be found on the College of Education website in the graduate course catalog. Students interested in the Program should consult with the designated TEACH Program advisor in their home department early in their undergraduate career.
